BRITISH SURRENDER KUT-EL-AMARA TO THE TURKS

Ten Thousand Men Pass Into Hands of Turks, Relief Army Not Twenty Miles Away and Food Ship Aground in Tigris

(Associated Press Cable)

London, April 29.—Major General Charles Townsend, commander of the British forces besieged at Kut-El-Amara, Mesopotamia, by a Turkish force since last December, has surrendered.

This information was contained in a British official statement issued this afternoon, which added that General Townsend destroyed all his guns and munitions before surrendering.

London, April 29.—The British force which surrendered at Kut-El-Amara amounts to about 10,000 men.

General Townsend probably was driven to surrender to avoid starvation of his force.

A recent official Turkish communication said that the position of the British at Kut-El-Amara was critical and that they were expecting to receive small supplies of food by aeroplane.

An official statement received yesterday from London showed that a last effort to send supplies to the garrison had failed.

It was announced that a ship laden with supplies sent up the Tigris had gone aground about four miles east of the city.

Less than a score of miles away, on the banks of the Tigris below the city, is a relief army which for months has been attempting to reach the besieged forces of General Townshend.

It was early in December of last year that General Townshend's army beaten in battle eighteen miles below Bagdad, retreated to Kut-El-Amara. Since that time, it has been besieged by a large army of Turks, cut off from all communication with the outside world except by wireless.

PRONOUNCED AGGRESSIVE IS RESUMED

Vigorous Attack East of the Meuse Is Launched Which, Paris Claims, Was Repulsed With a Heavy Loss.

(By Associated Press Cable)

London, England, April 29.—In the Verdun region, in France, the Germans have resumed a pronounced aggressive, delivering a vigorous attack east of the Meuse, near Douaumont, and massing for an assault after violently bombarding the French positions near Avocourt and the dominating Hill 304, to the west of the river.

The attack east of the Meuse was repulsed with heavy losses, Paris declares, while the French artillery dispersed the German masses before they could advance to the assault in the Avocourt sector.

The notable series of attacks by the Germans on the British lines in northern France and Belgium, reported Thursday night by London, seem to have been something in the nature of a "feeling out" process, as it was not immediately followed up.

Mine explosions and aerial attacks are the only activities reported from the British section of the front.

British casualties in April were 1,255 officers and 19,256 men, or slightly in excess of those during March.

Paris, April 29.—A Rome dispatch to the Matin says that Pope Benedict granted an interview of an hour to an English prelate, after which the Pope sent a long telegram to the Archbishop of Dublin.

FRANCE INSISTS VERDUN BATTLE IS NOW AT END

German Forces Are Being Withdrawn and Sent to Other Fields of Action.

(Associated Press Cable)

Paris, April 29.—The battle of Verdun may now be considered as ended, according to the opinion prevailing in French military circles.

Not only the recent French official reports, but yesterday's German announcement, stated that nothing important had developed in the Verdun region.

It is nearly two months since the German War Office has made such a statement.

Heavy German batteries in considerable numbers have been withdrawn from before Verdun and sent to a distant point, which, judging from the increasing activity there, probably is the portion of the line held by the British.

CONFERENCE DAY IS NOT YET FIXED

Not Yet Determined Whether Meeting Will Be Held in Juarez or in El Paso—Formal Calls Are Exchanged.

By Associated Press Dispatch.

El Paso, Texas, April 29.—General Obregon, Minister of War of the de facto government, with the chief military commanders of northern Mexico, made a return call of courtesy today on Major Generals Scott and Funston, preliminary to the first conference between the American and Mexican military officials regarding the pursuit of Villa and his bandits.

Major General Scott said that not until he had conferred with General Obregon would it be definitely known whether the first conference would be held in Juarez or El Paso.

The General added that the conference might not be held today, but Sunday or Monday.

DUBLIN REBELS FIGHTING FOR LIFE

Realizing That a Charge of Treason Will Be Lodged Against Them Desperate Rioters Keep Up Hopeless Resistance.

Wonderfully Efficient Organization Among the Rebel Forces Is Manifest in the Fresh Outbreaks.

ARTILLERY USED

(Associated Press Cable)

LONDON, APRIL 29.—ONE DISPATCH FROM IRELAND THIS AFTERNOON SAYS THAT SACKVILLE AND GRAFTON STREETS, IN DUBLIN, ARE IN FLAMES, AND THAT ARTILLERY IS BEING USED ON THE HOUSES, THE INHABITANTS HAVING BEEN REMOVED.

(Associated Press Cable)

London, April 29.—Simultaneously with the outbreak in Dublin on Monday, says a dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company, dated yesterday, a number of excursion trains arrived with men apparently pleasure bent.

Immediately upon reaching the station, these men proceeded to join the rebels, and by a concerted move captured all the bakeries and their delivery wagons, as well as motor cars, street cars and carts in the vicinity.

Many of the vehicles were used to erect barricades, while the cushions were utilized in the line of trenches which was dug in St. Stephen's Green.

Along the road, also, men who seemingly were working in gardens suddenly picked up guns and began firing at passersby, the dispatch states.

These outbreaks in the outskirts, however, have now become rare, adds the correspondent, and interest centers in Sackville street, where the postoffice is barricaded on the inside with bags of paper and all available books.

RIOTING RAMPANT

(Associated Press Cable)

London, April 29.—Parts of the city of Dublin are in flames, an Evening News dispatch filed at Belfast last night says.

Street fighting continues and there is much looting, it is said; but the reinforced military is making steady progress.

Most of the shops are closed and passenger communication is still cut off.

NEWS DELAYED

(Associated Press Cable)

London, April 29.—News from the disturbed sections of Ireland is still much belated, and the present situation is clouded with uncertainty in the lack of official announcements and free movement of news dispatches.

A London newspaper report states that the rebels in Dublin have been driven out of their entrenched positions in St. Stephen's Green by a bomb attack, sustaining heavy losses.

That they are still in control of various parts of the city, however, seems evident, and many casualties in street fighting are reported.

YIELDING

(Associated Press Cable)

London, April 29.—Although the story of the early hours of the Dublin uprising has now been disclosed in considerable detail, England is still without authentic information as to the progress of later events.

Normal telegraph, telephone and mail services with Ireland have not been restored, and the existing mains of communication are subject to such strict censorship that it is possible to obtain only fragmentary information.

Such news dispatches as came through this morning added little to the information contained in last night's official advices and stories of eye witnesses.

So far as official reports show, the situation in Dublin is gradually being brought under control.

There seems to be no doubt, however, that the rebels still control various parts of Dublin, and that street fighting continues with a lengthening list of casualties.

It is reported the casualty list already exceeds 100.

Of the situation outside Dublin, little is known beyond the official admission that the disaffection has spread to various localities.

1500 REBELS

(Associated Press Cable)

London, April 29.—From inquiries made among the military authorities at Dublin, the correspondent of the Evening Star concludes that there probably are not more than 1500 or 2000 men actually engaged in the rebellion, so far as the central part of Dublin is concerned.

REBELS HOLD ON

(Associated Press Cable)

Dublin, Ireland, Thursday, April 27.—Fifteen hundred or so armed men of the Sinn Fein had a hold on Ireland's capital today.

After four days of fighting, their rebel flag still flew from a number of central points.

Since Monday, some of the chief positions in the city have been in the hands of the rebels.

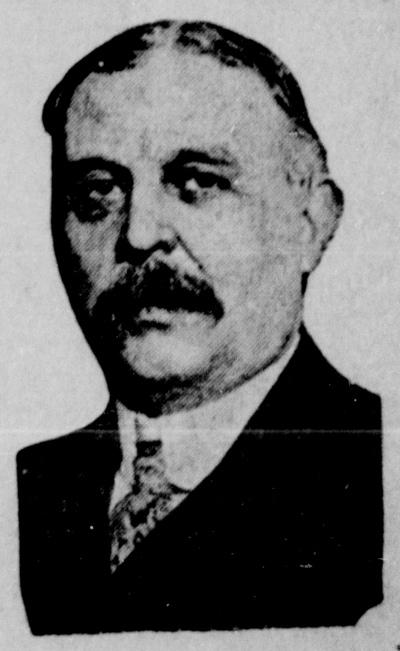

In defending these strongholds against regular troops and Irish Nationalist volunteers, the rebels are fighting with desperation for their lives, which they know may be forfeited on account of treason.

Regulars now command all the rebel positions, the fall of which is merely a matter of time.

The streets of Dublin were deserted today, except for sentries and military guards. Business was at a standstill.

FRANKFORT WANTS A BRANCH FACTORY

Frankfort buisness men have taken the first steps toward a systematic effort to secure more industries for the town. The P. Hagerty Shoe Co. of Washington C. H., Ohio is looking for a suitable location for that company's fitting department, which will manufacture exclusively the uppers of ladies', misses and children's shoes. A suitable building can be secured here, and a representative delegation of the company's management is expected to visit Frankfort during the coming week on a tour of inspection to learn definitely what can be done in the matter of location. Should the company locate here, it will employ 25 women and girls, for machine work on making shoe tops. The company is so crowded with orders that it finds it impossible to get them out rapidly enough, and the contemplated location here is the result.—Frankfort Sun.

BATTLE CRY OF PEACE

Preparedness Against War At The EMPIRE.

Peace with preparedness, and power behind that peace, are the keynotes of "The Battle Cry of Peace," a film propaganda in three parts. J. Stuart Blackton wrote the scenario, Wilfrid North directed the production, and Charles Richman, an actor of many parts on the legitimate stage in the past 20 years, was featured as the "star."

Commodore Blackton has plied his pen trenchantly. Obsessed by the fear that the United States, through present lack of a mobile army and an adequate navy, would be at the mercy of any invading power, he has laid his preachment on pigment, or to be up to date, on the screen, with heavy and unsparing hand. He has scoured statistics and reviewed page on page of national history to impress upon the people of this country that, in proportion to the nation's resources, wealth and possible fighting force, we are so meanly equipped and so woefully unprepared to cope with and resist invasion that our position as a nation is ridiculous and portentous of possible annihilation. In the third and final section especially, alternate in quick succession statements of prominent men past and present; statistics of comparison showing the strength, military and naval of various foreign powers, and pictorial illustration of our present prosperity and what might happen to ruin it.

With the collaboration of the secretary of the navy he has been able to secure authentic pictures of the American navy in action; through the aid of the nation's leading military officials he has been able to give on the screen a series of military alignments, offensive and defensive which are inspiring in the extreme.

The locale of "The Battle Cry of Peace" is laid in New York. Woven in and out is a slender, very slender story of a wealthy man who believes in peace only and is blind to all warnings as to his country's preparedness. , The pictures in themselves are sp'endid, the semblance of the bombardment and destruction are wonderfully obtained.

No matter how elaborate may be a film-play in these days, the average picture goer insists on good acting. It is to be found here that Mr. Richman, L. RogersLytton as the spy of the unnamed nation, Louise Beaudet, Norma Talmage, Harold Hubert, Lucille Hammill, Thais Lawton, Joseph Kilgour, E. M. Holland and many others whose names and portraits are well known to motion picture votaries. ; advt

W. C. T. U. MEETING

The local W. C. T. U. met at the Y. M. C. A. building Friday afternoon, with program in charge of Mrs. Mary Bush.

One of the most discouraging features hindering Sabbath reform is the too common indifference of Christian people.

If we believe in a Christian civilization for our country, the Sabbath must be kept as a religious institution.

We cannot maintain the Christian church without the Christian Sabbath.

Society is degraded as Christianity is corrupted, and the Sabbath perverted.

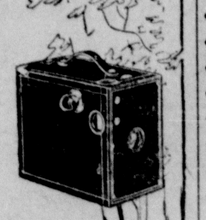

The church is bound to help the world "remember the Sabbath-day to keep it holy."

The president, Mrs. C. A. Stafford, has a number of cook books on hands which the union would like to dispose of.

Present Day Cartoons

One of the best indications that a more kindly feeling exists among opponents in public life is the very evident change for the better that has occurred in the style of the cartoon artists.

The drawings holding up officials and political candidates to scorn and contempt, picturing them as dishonest and having only a desire to defraud the public constitute a very small percentage of the cartoons of the present day.

The political cartoons, so called, these days, for the most part, call attention to some peculiar characteristic of the candidate for office, emphasize his peculiar ideas on political questions in a harmless humorous manner, but very rarely charge any wrong doing or dishonesty to him.

A few years ago, judging from the cartoons, we had in America only villians and dishonest men in the public service or standing as candidates for places of preference. That was not true then, is not true now and it is much better for the cartoonists not to continually charge that untruth.

The "life's darkest moment," the "days you'll never forget" and "our boyhood ambitions" cartoons—drawings calling attention to the human side of life are much preferable to the old style vicious type.

Editorial and news writers are compelled to divide credit with the great cartoonists as molders of public opinion and they should all work for a better and cleaner public opinion rather than to create suspicion of men in public life.

What News Cost

In an address delivered at the annual meeting of officers and members of The Associated Press, Vice-President and General Manager Melville E. Stone presented some interesting facts as to the cost of gathering the world news under normal conditions and under these times of disarrangement.

Very few people appreciate the enormous effort and expense that is required to place before them the news of the world in their daily paper.

Like many another marvelous achievement of this wonderful age we live in, people accept the results as a matter of course, giving little thought to what is necessary to enable the newspaper to present the concrete facts.

For instance, Mr. Stone calls attention to the fact that under normal conditions, for the collection and interchange of news leases are maintained with telegraph and telephone companies and something like fifty thousand miles of wires, stretching in every direction are operated by employees of the Associated Press. Everywhere, in every land, every moment of the day, the ceasless vigil for news is maintained.

The annual expense budget of the tremendous organization is between three and four million dollars and that does not take into account the work done by individual papers in reporting matters and handing the news over to the association for distribution.

The cost of reporting specific events, Mr. Stone points out, may be guaged with more certainty.

It is easy enough to total the cost of reporting the Martinique disaster at $28,000, the Russo-Japanese war at $300,000, and so on.

The cost of reporting a recent event—the speech of Chancellor von Bethman-Hollweg, in the German Reichstag, is an illustration.

To get the report of that speech to the readers of American newspapers, by wireless, round about cable routes through Holland and England to New York cost, in tolls alone, over one dollar a word.

Yet all this goes into your paper for your perusal in the quiet of your home at a cost, to you, of a few pennies a week.

The great organization is one of those perfectly working pieces of machinery which men have constructed, doing its work so well that people expect and accept without a thought of its cost of operation, or the difficulties which are encountered and must surmount.

Should Stop It

Once again the agitation to curtail, if it's impossible, to abolish the abuses of the printing and publishing of public documents by the national congress is to the forefront.

The government spends thousands and thousands of dollars every year for printing lengthy "speeches" of congressmen who never say more than "Mr. Speaker" in the halls of congress. Publishing tons of pamphlet copies of such speeches at the expense of the government is a cheap way far too large a number of congressmen have of creating the impression among the folks back home that they are "some figure" in national affairs.

If these small caliber statesmen would pay the cost of printing and circulating speeches which they never delivered and which are frequently written by some one else it wouldn't be quite so bad.

May be sometime congress will become ashamed and stop this needless waste of the people's money.

It doesn't help a bit to say that other congressmen have done likewise. Wrong, no matter how often repeated, does not make a right.

Poetry For Today

THE WINTER IS PAST.

Soft on this April morning
Breathe from the South delicate odors
Vaguely defined, giving the breezes
Spring-like, delicious zest;—

Breezes from Southern forests,
Bringing us glad tidings of summer's
Promised return; waking from slumber
Each of the earliest plants.

Lo! in the night the elm-tree
Opened its buds; catkins of hazel
Tasselled the hedge, maple and alder
Welcomed with bloom the Spring.

Faintly the warbling bluebird
Utters his note; song-sparrows boldly
Fling to the wind joyous assurance,
"Summer is coming North!"

None can express the longing,
Mingled with joy, mingled with sadness,
Swelling my heart ever, when April
Brings us the bird and flower.

Tender and sweet remembrance
Filing my soul, gves me assurance,
"Death is but frost; lo! the eternal
Spring-time of heaven shall come."
—Thomas Hill.

KEEP UP FIGHTING

London, April 29.—Fighting is still in progress in the streets of Dublin. In various parts of the Irish capital, sniping parties, perched on the roofs of buildings, continue to aggravate the government troops who are trying to put down the rebellion. The government officially expressed confidence that its extinction is only a matter of time.

The Four Courts, situated on the northern banks of the River Liffey, half way between the Royal barracks, on the same bank, and Dublin Castle, at the mouth of the river, is still firmly in the hands of the rebels. Fires are raging in several parts of the city, causing great damage.

The rebellion has spread to the west and south of Ireland. This fact already officially announced, was reiterated by the official press bureau in a statement which specified the districts in which the disturbances have broken out. "The principal centers of disturbance," says the statement, "are County Galway and Enniscorthy."

County Galway is one of the largest Irish counties and lies due west of Dublin, on the west coast. Galway, on Galway bay, being the principal city. Enniscorthy is a city of Wexford county, due south of Dublin, twelve miles from the city of Wexford, which is situated on the St. George channel.

"Disturbances are also reported from Killarney, Clonmel and Gorey," continues the official account. Killarney is a city in the southern part of the County Kerry, in southwestern Ireland. Clonmel lies in County Waterford, in the southeast of the island, not far from Wexford, while Gorey is a small town near the east coast, slightly to the northeast of Enniscorthy. The official statement adds: "Other parts of Ireland appear to be normal. The general trend of reports received indicates that the disturbances are of a local character."

Yesterday's casualties in Dublin, as officially reported, were two officers killed and five wounded. This brings the total number of officially reported casualties up to 21 killed and 32 wounded.

Herbert James Craig, Laborite member of parliament from Tynemouth, gave notice that he will move in the house of commons a petition to the king for the removal of Baron Wimborne lord lieutenant of Ireland, and Chief Secretary for Ireland Birrell. The motion also is to call for the appointment of a commission to inquire into the conduct of these two officials.

WAR TO KNIFE IS UNDER WAY

Bootlegging Charges Stir Up Merry Row Among the Alleged Dealers, and Now Counter Charges Are Being Filed—"Sleuth" Porter Faces Two Charges.

The merry war is on!

"Tow" Porter, who recently filed a handfull of affidavits against various persons, charging them with selling or giving away liquor, now faces two charges—one of furnishing whiskey, a thing to which he testified while on the witness stand as prosecuting witness in the Elizabeth Minshall case, and the other charge is that of keeping a house of ill-fame.

The last charge was filed before Justice T. N. Craig Friday afternoon by Frank Hickman, who had just been fined $50 and the costs for giving away intoxicants, the charge against Hickman having been filed by Porter.

Porter, who is formerly from Mt. Sterling, where he is well known, is to face the charge filed by Hickman Thursday of next week.

Meanwhile Porter vows vengence against some of those whom he claims are trying to "get" him for his part in the little clean-up campaign, and appeared at the Mayor's office Saturday morning with a list of 21 names for the purpose of filing a few more affidavits charging selling, furnishing and what-not.

Porter will face Mayor Oster some time the coming week to answer to the charge of giving away liquor. This charge was filed by Eliabezth Minshall soon after she was fined $200 for selling whiskey to Porter.

The proceedings are being watched with a great deal of interest, as the charges and counter charges filed are expected to be widespread before the affair is ended.

SABINA 'LEGGERS PAINFULLY STUNG

When Sampson Grove, erstwhile druggist of Sabina, entered a plea of guilty before Mayor Stewart, of Sabina, Friday, he was fined $500 and the costs and a bond of $1,000 which Grove had given upon a previous occasion was declared forfeited, so that Grove gave the corporation of Sabin a acheck for $1637.50, $100 of the amount being for his brother who was arrested for being a party to the crime.

But the $1637.50 was not the extent of the man's troubles. He was assessed the Dow Tax of $1,000 and penalty of $200, making a total of $2837.50, the man paid for his wholesale methods of distributing liquor.

Grove also lost a stock of "goods" worth $1200, bringing his total costs up to $4,037.50. He paid, financially weaker, and quite a little the wiser.

George Dunn, who also was arrested in the raid made by agents of the State Liquor License Commission, entered a plea of of guilty and paid a fine of $200 and the costs. The Dow tax to the extent of $600 was assessed against him, so that his little experience will cost him in excess of $800.

Frank Groves, who is no relation to Sampson Grove, will be tried before Mayor Stewart Friday of next week.

The agents of the Commission expect to renew their work in Sabina first of the week, having struck pay dirt in such liberal quantities on their previous visit.

PREPARING FOR IMPERIAL STAFF

Extensive arrangements are being made in London for the visit of Imperial Degree Staff of this city, which goes to London on May 15th to confer the dramatic first degree. Concerning the coming event the Madison County Democrat says:

F., will confer the Third degree next Monday evening, and on May 8 will start a class of ten or twelve candidates preparatory for the meeting of May 15 when the Washington C. H. degree staff will exemplify the first degree. An auto parade through London will be one of the features of the meeting of May 15.

"There was a good attendance at the special meeting, Thursday evening, the occasion being the 97th anniversary of the order. Supper was served at 6 o'clock. The celebration of the anniversary was a happy occasion, one of the chief attractions being a drill by the Daughters of Rebecca. F. C. Garrett, of Dayton, grand scribe of the grand encampment, made the chief address of the evening."

GRADE SCHOOL CANTATA "PAN" MUCH ENJOYED

Difficult Music Mastered in a Manner Which Speaks Volumes for Efficiency of Instructors and Pupils.

Large Audience Delighted With One of the Most Pretentious Entertainments Ever Attempted By Pupils of the Local Grade Schools.

"Pan, on a Summer Day," a cantata of beautiful melodies and fascinating story, text and music by Paul Bliss, was presented to an enthusiastic audience that filled the high school auditorium Friday night by pupils of the fifth, sixth and seventh and eighth grades Central, of the Washington schools, under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Sheen, Miss Ruth Reid at the piano.

As an entertainment it was a charming novelty most artistically put on, and from the standpoint of juvenile musical programs stands entirely in a class by itself. The response made by the youthful singers to the decidedly difficult demands of the cantata amazed the audience and the chorus work was probably the highest tribute to the ability of Miss Sheen as musical director that has been paid, even remembering the number of musical achievements which have been recorded during the past few years.

The curtain rose promptly upon a pretty scene of radiant youth—a hundred children—all in the white and green of spring and the woods, rising tier after tier against the soft effulgent glow of the background.

The cantata, and by the way, some idea of its character may be realized from the fact that it was given by the Juniors at Cornell University last year, developed its music around "Pan," God of the Woods, on a Summer Day. The opening chorus, introducing Pan and his pipes awakening the world, was beautiful and the humming chorus, featured throughout, wonderfully pretty with marked delicacy the chorus songs of the "Sunbeams, the Dew-drops," and Nature's factors in tearing off night's somber garments; and in strains, now softly minor, now swelling crescendo, records the events of Pan's day; the great storm, the wind, the rain, the soft lulling to midday sleep, the twilight serenade and the splendid climax in "the music of the Spheres in praise of Night."

The young singers entered into the spirit of the cantata as the music, now weird and full of haunting melodies, now proclaiming the joyousness of the world, nymphs and the triumph of nature, advanced, and their volume, prompt attack and good shading was really remarkable. Their work in high sustained tones was exceptionally fine and difficult for young voices.

Particularly captivating was the 'Dance of the Nymphs," given with the utmost grace and beauty by seven talented little dancers in the costumes of Classic Greece, diaphanous white, bordered in green, and their feet bare. The nympths flitted gracefully in various classic dances, groups and poses and drew repeated encores from the fascinated audience. They were Virginia Campbell, Mary Jane Stutson, Martha Porter, Avonelle Timmons, Eleanore Jones, Gail Bowen, Maxine Kibler.

Joseph Wilson took the role of "Pan" very cleverly. His make-up as the mystical God of the Woods, a shaggy being in skins and garlands, with horns and pointed ears, was fine, and the fantastic abandon with which he danced drew great applause.

Miss Ruth Reid played the accompaniments with exquisite delicacy and fine interpretation.

Mrs. Fred West planned the very attractive costumes and coached the dancers.

The pretentiousness of the cantata, the degree of efficiency in training shown, and the splendid development of the pupils enabling them to be equal to such demands, all speak volumes for what it means to have music taught in the public schools and to have a board of education and school management in sympathy with the highest and most progressive methods of school advancement.

Throughout the past year there have been a number of school entertainments, and each one has testified to the splendid progress of the public schools of our city. That the public thoroughly appreciates and enjoys these entertainments is shown by the fact that the capacity of the large auditorium is always taxed.

Incidentally, there is nothing which is of such substantial advantage to school and school interests as this splendid high school auditorium affording for the first time in local school history a place where the public can see and realize what our schools are doing.

LOCALS TO MEET OLD FOES SUNDAY

The "L. B. Harrisons," a Cincinnati ball club whose playing staff consists principally of former members of the old "Muldoon" outfit, is scheduled to stack up against the Athletics here Sunday afternoon. The Muldoons, it will be remembered, lost by a narrow margin one of the stiffest games on the local grounds last season.

Southpaw McClure, whose charming presence loomed up like a brick house in a storm in his initial game last Sunday, is to occupy the rubber again Sunday. Linson and Snow may be used for part of the game. C. B. Thompson, Dayton, is the name and addres of the umpire announced.

The locals will line up and bat in the following order: Corwin,ss; Noon, lf; Grandle, 1b; Neisley,c; Runnells, 2b; Adams,rf; Lewis, 3b; Jones, cf; McClure, Linson, Snow, p.

"ADVERTISING MAKES CARS GO"

"Money makes the mare go" is the old saying. Hugh Chalmers has changed it to "Advertising makes the cars go." So firm is Mr. Chalmers in his belief that one million dollars will be spent this year telling the public about Chalmers cars.

Newspaper advertising is the backbone of the Chalmers campaign, though of course some of the great national weeklies and magazines are also used. Paul Smith, vice-president in charge of sales, says this of newspaper advertising:

"The local newspaper is the now medium. It is the solar plexus blow which hits at the door of each home in each dealers town. And that means sales now. The national weekly and magazine is necessary, but the timely blow is delivered by the daily paper in each sales district. As a proof of our absolute faith in this fact we are using 1600 newspapers throughout the country several times each month in the paign we are now waging."

In a recent talk to a Board of Commerce Mr. Chalmers said:

"Advertising increases my sales so that I simply cannot afford to do without it. The only man who can't advertise is the one with so much business he can't handle it; or the man with so little business it isn't worth while. Our secret of advertising is as simple as A. B. C. Be honest, be sensible and be persistent."

HE PROVED HIS CASE

IT was the rush hour in one of those quick lunch places where you help yourself and use the arm of your chair as a table. A man called for a piece of pie and chose a chair. Then, remembering that he wanted coffee, he hastily put down his pie and dashed over to the service counter. When he returned with his coffee his chair was occupied by another hurry up diner.

"I can prove it."

"Excuse me," said the first man, "but this is my chair."

"How do you know it is your chair?" demanded the occupant in a surly tone.

"Because I can prove it," stated the first man.

"How can you prove it?" asked the occupant.

"By your trousers," was the confident reply. "You are sitting on my pie."

NO ONE WILL EAT THESE BAD EGGS

It required fifty gallons of kerosene and five hours time for two deputy United States marshals to cremate 89,280 bad eggs, which were condemned by the supreme court of the District of Columbia as being unfit for use. These eggs were seized in the municipal market where they had been offered for sale, bakeries being the usual purchasers of the canned product.

In Social Circles

A marriage of interest to a large well known family connection throughout the county and many warm personal friends was quietly celebrated at the Presbyterian manse Saturday morning at a quarter of nine, when Miss Lois Coffey, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Coffey, was wedded to Mr. Maring C. Myers, of Kokomo, Ind.

Rev. William Boynton Gage performed an impressive ceremony witnessed by the bride's brother, Clark Coffey, and a quartet of intimate friends, Misses Fantie Hyer, Mabel Larrimer, Margaret DeWees and Leona Waters.

The bride, a girl as charming and sweet as she is pretty, was looking very lovely in a blue taffeta coat suit with cream lace waist and large black picture hat. A corsage bouquet of pink rose buds gave just the right note of color.

It is a matter of very sincere regret that the bride's home town must lose her and the host of good wishes which are being extended are tinged with the sense of genuine loss.

The bridegroom, a sterling young business man of pleasing personality, is traveling representative of the Dillings Candy Co, Indianapolis, Ind., with headquarters at Kokomo, Ind., where the future home of the young couple will be made.

Mr. and Mrs. Myers left after the ceremony for Indianapolis and Kokomo.

Several pre-nuptial affairs complimented the bride but none prettier nor more charming than a miscellaneous shower given for her Friday night at the home of Mr. W. T. Holmes, by Misses Mable Larrimer and Fantie Hyer.

The shower was a complete surprise and Miss Coffey was amazed to be taken into a closed room and after being seated beneath a canopy formed of yellow and white streamers, to find a rain of gifts pouring into her lap. There were many beautiful things in silver, china, cut glass, linens and will be appreciated souvenirs in the new home.

Spring flowers decked the rooms and yellow and white tints were introduced in the delicious collation served.

Miss Coffey wore an extremely modish gown of canary chiffon, with bodice and trimmings of blue, and corsage of white roses.

Mrs. Holmes and Miss Margaret DeWees assisted the attractive hostesses in the hospitalities.

Miss Pauline Pine's class of boys had a most delightful picnic supper in the basement of Grace church Friday evening.

Twenty-five boys organized their class into a chapter of the International boys' organization "Knights of Methodism," and are anticipating much from the new associations.

The supper was carried out successfully under the direction of the social committee, Robert Reardon, Norman McLean, Oliver Tracey. Mrs. Stone and Miss Pine assisted the boys.

Dr. and Mrs. P. J. Henness entertained Friday evening with a charming six o'clock dinner in compliment to Mrs. Armethia Lewellen, who is teaching in Akron and home for the spring vacation, and Mrs. Walter McCoy of Greensburg, Ind.

The additional guests were Dr. Florence Rankin, Misses Clara Haines, Corda McCafferty, Gertrude Channel, Media Bush.

The guests had all accompanied Rev. and Mrs. Henness on tours, either to Europe or California, and the dinner hour with its flow of reminiscences, both interesting and amusing contributed most pleasurably.

MORE DOUBLE TRACK ON THE B. & O. R. R.

The more double track to be had by a railroad the better fitted it is to handle heavy trafffic, and thus dispose of its freight with ease. At the present time the railroad officials of the B. & O. are rejoicing over the additions that have recently been made between Midland City and Cincinnati.

A change of tracks is now being made in the neighborhood of Loveland and the D. A. Tower, just east of Loveland. The laying of the double track has necessitated the removal of the tower to position one mile further east of Loveland, near Warren Siding.

This changing of the tower has made it necessary to put on three operators at the tower, it having now been made a block station, for the purpose of handling all trains. These operators will be held in their position until the electric automatic signals are re-arranged. This placing of more operators has cut in on Division Operator G. W. Plumley's extra list, and other changes are cutting down the list.

Work has now been extended on the double tracks from Cozaddale, west of Hill station, making two more miles of track. This now gives almost an unbroken stretch of double track between Midland City and Cincinnati. One single track runs between the D. A. Tower and Hill station. The distance of the single track is about one mile.

As stated above, there is a shortage of operators on the division, which now has a force of over two hundred men working. And that is not all, the shortage will be greater. The resignations of some and the transfer of others and the placing of extra men will soon make the demand greater than it is now.—Scioto Gazette.

Invites Ambassador Gerard to a Conference.

TO SEND APPEAL TO WILSON

German Emperor Will Deal Primarily With the Necessity of Avoiding a Rupture Between Two Friendly Peoples Over What German Officials Hold a "Technical Interpretation of International Law."

Washington, April 29.—Official advises from Berlin explain the true significance of Ambassador Gerard's visit to grand army headquarters, where he will have an audience with the German emperor.

The visit has been made at the emperor's request in order to permit him to convey, through Ambassador Gerard, an earnest plea to President Wilson to maintain friendly relations with Germany.

No discussion of the submarine issue between the emperor and Ambassador Gerard is expected. The kaiser's message to Mr. Gerard will deal primarily with the necessity of averting war between two friendly peoples over what German officials here describe as "technical interpretations of international law," which could be satisfactorily adjusted by arbitration or by an international tribunal.

It is expected by those in touch with Berlin that the emperor will appeal directly to President Wilson's firm belief in the doctrines of peace and arbitration, while adroitly indicating that severance of diplomatic relations would be universally regarded in Germany as a preliminary to actual hostilities.

The emperor will take the position, it is understood, that neither the German people nor the American people want war, and that it is the solemn duty of those in charge of the destinies of these peoples to avert "such a calamity." He will furthermore give Mr. Gerard assurances that the imperial government is ready to end the world conflict any time the allies are ready to abandon their campaign, and he will express the belief that the end of the war is already in sight, unless the conflict would unfortunately be broadened in scope, and thereby lengthened.

The effect of the emperor's readiness to send an earnest plea by Mr. Gerard is already noticeable here. Confidence was in evidence at the German embassy, despite reports from Berlin that the German people now show a determined unwillingness to sacrifice the effectiveness of the submarine campaign against England. Officials at the state department foresee, however, the possibility that Germany will substitute an appeal from the emperor for a definite reply to the president's so-called ultimatum.

No progress is reported from Berlin in the negotiations concerning the reply to the so-called ultimatum. President Wilson and his cabinet met and discussed the submarine issue briefly. Secretary Lansing said he had received no advices which changed the situation.

BRANDEIS CAUSE OF A STORMY ARGUMENT

Senators Predict Unfavorable Report on Nomination.

Washington, April 29.—A stormy debate over the nomination of Louis D. Brandeis for the supreme court broke in the senate, and before it was over predictions were made by two members of the judiciary committee, one of them a Democrat, that an unfavorable report on the appointment would follow when the committee reached a vote.

Discussion was precipitated when Senator Sutherland, a Republican member of the committee, read to the senate an interview by Senator Ashurst, charging the Republican members of the judiciary committee were filibustering in order to delay a vote on the nomination until the national political conventions.

Senator Ashurst stood steadfastly by the quoted statement during the heated argument, until assured by fellow members of the committee that there was no such filibuster. He withdrew the charge at the suggestion of Senator Brandegee.

It is generally believed that the debate will serve to bring the committee to a vote on the nomination within a few days. All the senators who took part in the discussion are members of the committee.

MEASLES AT TOLEDO

Toledo, April 29.—Twenty-six children died in as many days in Toledo from measles, according to a report made by the board of health. The epidemic is gradually decreasing, while scarlet fever is growing in number of cases, it was said.

ARTILLERY ACTIVITY IN FRANCE

British Suffer Reverses In Egypt and Mesopotamia.

London, April 29.—Only aerial and artillery activities mark the progress of the war on the European fields, but the British have met with reverses both in Egypt and in Mesopotamia.

In a battle near Quatia, according to reports from Constantinople, a British force of four cavalry squadrons has been annihilated by the Turks, who captured 300 prisoners, besides inflicting heavy losses. Quatia is twenty-three miles east of the Suez canal.

The war office announces that an attempt to relieve the beleagured force of General Townshend in Kut-el-Amara failed when a vessel loaded with supplies grounded in the Tigris river four miles east of Kut. The affair, the official statement says, was carried out with "the utmost gallantry."

Air men also have been active in the Asiatic field. Constantinople claims that a British aeroplane squadron raided Quatia after the British defeat and tarew bombs on a hospital. The Turks attacked from an aeroplane an entente allied warship at Elkantara and the docks of Port Said. They also dropped bombs on entente aviation grounds on Imbros island.

There has been some infantry activity on the front in France, held by the British force, but along the rest of the front the artillery and aerial forces have been means of attack by the opposing forces. The artillery bombardment has been violent both east and west of the Meuse in the Verdun region. East of the Meuse the Germans shelled the French positions between the Cote du Povre and Douaumont.

French airmen have shelled German stations and the Germans have retaliated by attacks in the Verdun sector.

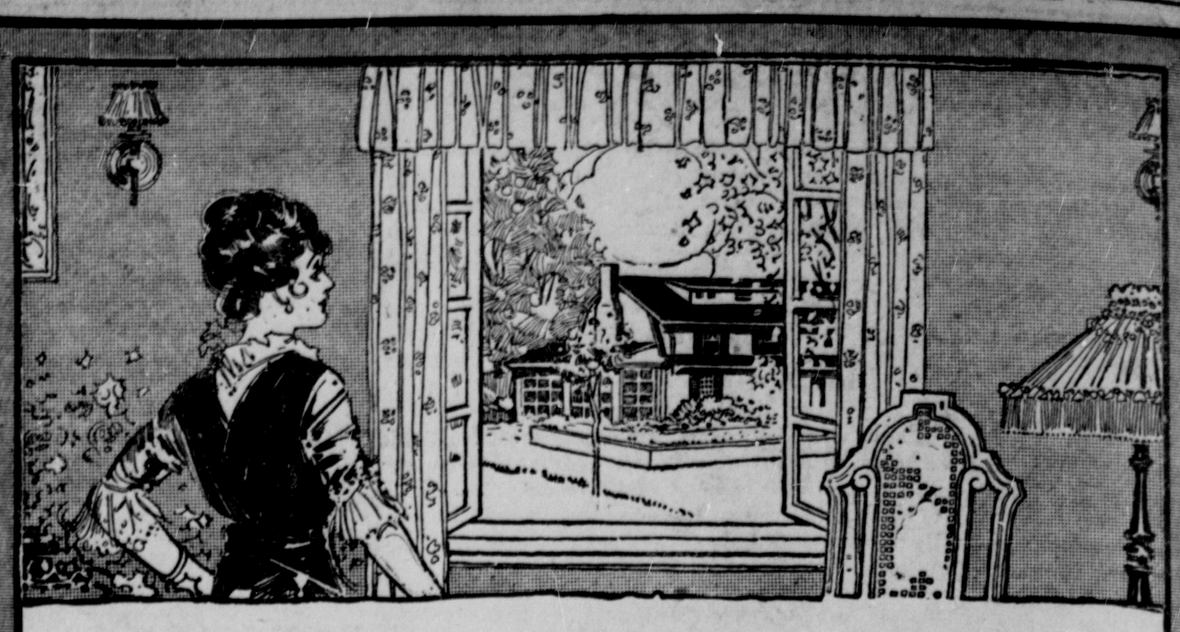

OLD GAME

(By American Press)

Washington, April 29.—Reports received at several of the European embassies here have aroused grave apprehension in regard to the Mexican situation. These reports were to the effect that the Carranza government is on the verge of a complete collapse and that conditions in and around Mexico City are more threatening than they have been at any time since the overthrow of Porfirio Diaz.

Villa, the report shows, is fast assuming in the eyes of the Mexican populace the figure of a national hero. Availing themselves of this fact, intriguers at the national capital are said to be plotting for Carranza's overthrow. It is stated that Carranza is in imminent danger of assassination.

In the meantime, the reports go on to state, the food shortage in various parts of Mexico, not excepting the capital, is growing daily more serious, and pestilence is beginning to take its toll from the ranks of the starving. Carranza currency has dropped to the unprecedented level of a ratio of 100 pesos to $1 in American gold. Hostility against Americans is reported to be growing.

A Story of Mountain Railroad Life

SYNOPSIS.

Little Helen Holmes, daughter of General Holmes, railroad man, is rescued from imminent danger on a scenic railroad by George Storm, a newsboy. Grown to young womanhood, Helen saves Storm, now a fireman, her father, and his friends Amos Rhinelander, financier, and Robert Seagrue, promoter, from a threatened collision. Safebreakers employed by Seagrue steal General Holmes' survey plans of the cut off line for the Tidewater, fatally wound the general and escape. Her father's estate badly involved by his death, Helen goes to work on the Tidewater. Helen recovers the survey plans from Seagrue, and though they are taken from her, finds an accidentally made proof of the survey blueprint. Storm is employed by Rhinelander. Spike, befriended by Helen, in his turn saves her and the right-of-way contracts when Seagrue kidnaps her. Helen and Storm win for Rhinelander a race against Seagrue for right-of-way. Helen, Storm and Rhinelander rescue Spike from Seagrue's men. Spike steals records to protect Rhinelander, and Storm and Helen save Spike from death in the burning court house. Vein in Superstition mine pinches out. Seagrue salts it and sells it to Rhinelander.

Encouraged on the outside by the word that the imprisoned men were still alive, the rescuers redoubled their efforts. The battered foreman, heading the line in the narrow hole, picked through the shattered formation, sent back word he was nearly through and a shout of joy went up from the anxious hearts of those gathered outside. The doctors were already busy laying out their temporary hospital and making ready to take care of the exhausted men the moment they could reach them.

To the prisoners the sound of the pick and the dislodgment of rock was coming so close that Storm and Rhinelander almost felt they could see the work. In another instant a shaft of light, gleaming like a star, greeted the staring eyes of the two men and they cried out together to greet the man on the other side. A second and larger piece of rock fell and was dragged away and more light shot into the prison house.

"Water!" cried Rhinelander. "For God's sake, boys, push in a canteen."

Helen heard the cry. Half-dozen willing men ran for the precious fluid. A bottle of water was pushed into Storm's hand and the next moment the half-conscious men were being revived by him.

Nerved, despite exhaustion, to a final spurt of energy, the rescuers rapidly enlarged the hole until Helen, eager at the foreman's elbow, said she could get through, and against his protestations of danger crawled first through the cave-in, closely followed by the chief surgeon who, once inside, began to treat the most helpless of the suffering men.

The condition of the uncertain entrance called for the greatest care on the part of the rescuers. Great masses of rock, suspended by not more, it would seem, than a thread, hung threateningly over the ragged passage. But time was too precious to wait for further safety and the moment the men could be passed out, they were turned over to the hospital staff.

Rhinelander had refused to leave until the last of the miners had been taken out to safety. Storm followed him. Helen was the last to come through.

A great crowd had gathered about the mine and as the imprisoned men were revived, and the chief surgeon, covered with dust and debris, announced that no lives would be lost, cheers went up again.

Seagrue, elbowing his way through the bystanders up to Rhinelander, congratulated him on his escape.

Rhinelander smiled grimly. "That was a close squeak, Seagrue. Helen," he exclaimed, addressing his words to her, "we came near losing out, girl, but we didn't—quite. I'm all right and so is George Storm, here." He laid his hand on his stalwart foreman's shoulder. "The rest of the men," he added, "will be as good as ever by tomorrow. But that isn't all, Seagrue. We've relocated the vein!"

Seagrue started. "What do you mean?" he cried.

"I mean, we have found the vein again," exclaimed Rhinelander, "and that we're going to take a million dollars in quartz out of the Superstition in the next three months."

Seagrue refused to credit his hearing. He started for the tunnel and, despite the warnings of those about him, crawled through the opening and made his way to where the final blast had disclosed the glistening vein. He picked up the ore thoughtfully and looked from it back to the rock wall. It was a vision to dazzle the sight of a prospector. Untold wealth was symbolized in that great deposit. The stormy scene with his shareholders in the directors' room rose in the semi-darkness before his eyes. He stood a moment in deep study.

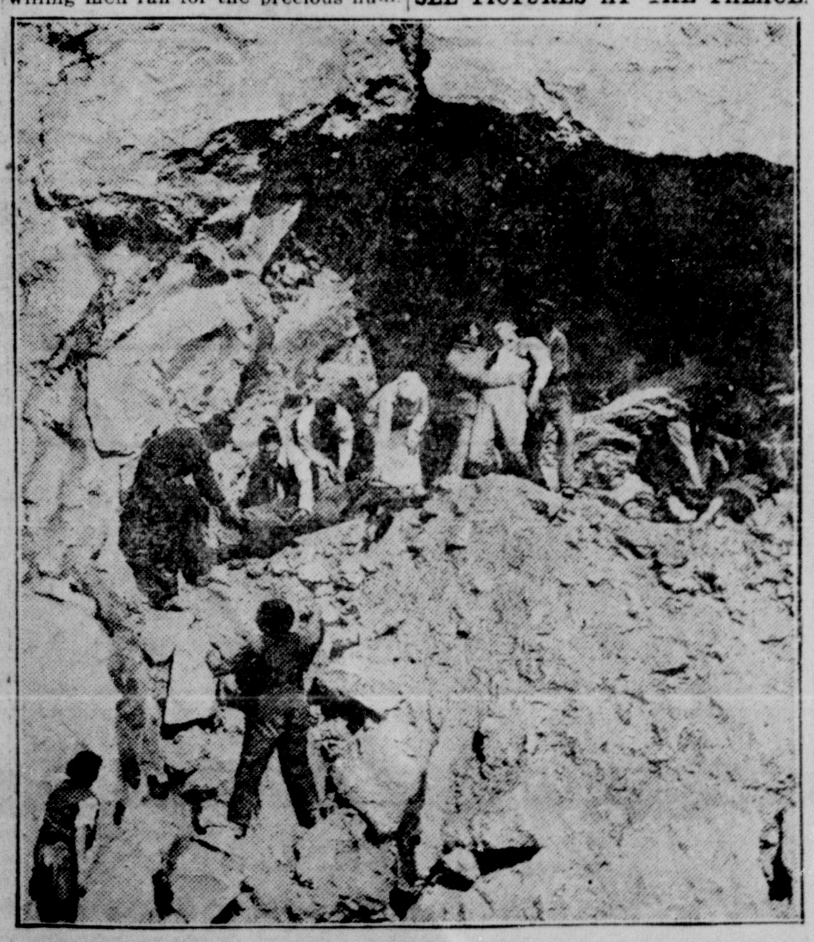

At the mine entrance the men were getting on their feet and telling listening comrades their experiences.

Storm was dismissing the men for the day and, released from further toil, they slowly filed away. Turning from them, he joined Helen and Rhinelander. Together the three discussed their great new fortune.

Within the gloom of the tunnel stood Seagrue. He had taken out his contract and was looking intently at it. Something it suggested seemed to appeal to him; some hopeful idea, perhaps, occurred to his mind, for he smiled.

BREST-LITOVSK AS IT IS TODAY

(Associated Press Cable)

Brest-Litovsk, Russia, April 29.—For almost the first time in history the Jews of this district have an opportunity to show whether or not they can become agriculturalists.

When the Russians evacuated this city and set it on fire they took with them many thousands of the Jewish population. Great numbers died, others kept on a head of the retreating Russians, and still others hid in the woods and then, penniless and hungry, streamed back into Brest-Litovsk again.

For a time the Germans attempted to house them in the ruined city. But they have all now been sent out to abandoned farms, where their work is regularly inspected by German officials. Every possible assistance is given them in hope that they may raise good crops and do their share toward helping out the need in Poland. The land in this section is fertile, and with proper cultivation and care should bear a big crop.

The city of Brest-Litovsk itself still remains the next thing to a city of the dead. Five sixths or thereabouts of its houses are nothing but gaping walls within which stand only the remains of the remarkable Russian stoves which stand even after chimneys crumble and fall.

The Germans stationed in Brest have done wonders in cleaning up the city. Each ruined house has been thoroughly gone over. The debris has been removed or neatly piled up, and each object not utterly destroyed by fire and which is still usable in one way or another has been rescued.

The forts, which the Russians blew up with dynamite and which were valued at three hundred million francs(approximately $60,000,000) are still heaps of cement and stone, broken and crumbling. There is no activity discernible that would indicate that the Germans are attempting to restore the fortifications for their own purposes.

THEY'RE COMING

Juarez, April 29.—General Canute Reyes, principal leader of the anti-Carranza forces in the Laguna district about Torreon, and 2,000 men, including several bandit leaders of lesser renown, have surrendered to the Carranza government and been granted amnesty.

This statement was made by Mexican War Minister Alvaro Obregon, after receipt of a telegram from the south. General Obregon conferred with a representative of General Reyes Wednesday at Torreon and received information that the terms had been accepted by Reyes and his followers. "The only terms granted were terms of amnesty," said General Obregon. "This," he said, "disposes of all armed opposition of any importance in Mexico. I now consider it proper that the United States army should withdraw. Our government can take care of all the troubles that Mexico has to face."

SWAT THE FLY!

Right now is the time to begin the campaign against the fly. The following are a few ways by which this pest can be controlled:

1. Screen the house.

2. Keep all the premises free from fly attracting material such as garbage, slops and manure.

3. Screen all privies on the premises. Have in every closet a keg of slaked lime and use freely to dry up the closet material.

4. When cleaning out the stables do not spread the manure over the lot but haul directly to the field. If this is not possible, put it in a heap and spray every two weeks arsenite of soda solution. This solution is poisonous and must be kept away from feed stuffs. The eggs of the fly are laid on stable manure and in privies, but thrive best on horse manure. Each female lays about 125 eggs of which 75 are females. In ten days after the eggs are laid the fly is full grown.—O. S. U. Bulletin.

SOUNDS WELL

Columbus, April 29.—Success of workmen's compensation in Ohio was shown in figures submitted by T. J. Duffy, state industrial commissioner, to members of industrial accident boards and commissions from 32 states, in convention here. Nearly 1,200,000 workers in Ohio are protected by Ohio's compulsory workmen's compensation act, in effect since Jan. 1, 1914. On April 1, 1916, nearly 19,000 Ohio employers were subscribers to the state workmen's compensation fund, as compared with 3,938 employers who were in the state fund when the compulsory law became effective Jan. 1, 1914. The actual cash balance in the state fund for payment to injured workmen and dependents of killed employes was $3,628,045 on April 1. Premium rates charged Ohio employers in the fund are $1, as compared with $2.55 charged by competing liability insurance companies in Ohio.

LOFTY SAN MARINO.

The Only Nation In the World Without a Daily Paper.

San Marino is the smallest republic in the world and one of the most ancient, being over 1,000 years old. It is situated on a plateau 2,000 feet high, ten miles from the Adriatic sea and about sixty-five miles east of Florence. It is a walled city with watch towers and contains twenty-seven square miles.

The men quarry gray building stone, which is carried to the sea by oxen. The wine cellars are caves in the rock, and outside the openings tables are placed and food and wine served. The women cook over charcoal stoves in the open street or square and people buy.

In the evening, after the stageconch from Rimini brings the mail, all gather at the postoffice, while some better reader than the rest reads the news from an outside newspaper, for the nation of San Marino is the only civilized one in the world without a daily paper.

The nation maintains a standing army of nineteen, increased to thirty in time of stress. The government is by twelve elders chosen by the people. All legal cases are settled by an outside justice, who serves for three years and is never re-elected.

There are 12,000 inhabitants. Time is divided into four periods of six hours each. No clock marks more than six hours, this custom following the ancient Vigilae of the Romans. The tiny republic commands one of the most wonderful views in Italy.—New York Times.

Bowser's Abandoned Farm

By M. QUAD

MRS. BOWSER was greatly surprised one evening last winter when Mr. Bowser brought a man home with him to dinner and introduced him as Mr. Banks. The stranger was invited to partake of dinner, and nothing was said as to any errand he might have until the meal was finished. Then Mr. Bowser said:

"Mrs. Bowser, you know that for several years past I have been wanting to turn farmer. Every time I bring up the subject you oppose it and make me out a good deal of an idiot. I have brought Mr. Banks to set you right about some things. He is a practical farmer and can tell you all about it."

Mr. Banks scratched his head and moved his feet uneasily as Mrs. Bowser fixed him with a look.

"You wish to sell Mr. Bowser a farm, do you?"

"I have made him an offer of one," was the reply.

"And what kind of a farm is it?" was asked.

"Well, I shall not deceive you about it. When I took it, it was what is called an abandoned farm."

"But that doesn't hurt the farm any," said Mr. Bowser. "In fact, it helps it. The soil of any farm needs a rest once in awhile, the same as people need a vacation."

"Mr. Banks, is there any soil on your farm to rest and recuperate itself?"

"Yes; oh, yes, but of course there are a few stones there, as there are on most any farm."

"Of course there are!" exclaimed Mr. Bowser. "They are needed on a farm for building purposes."

"Mr. Banks, couldn't you call this property a stone quarry as truthfully as a farm?"

"I've heard it called thus," was the evasive reply.

"Mrs. Bowser," shouted Mr. Bowser as he rose up, "you are insulting Mr. Banks! You have no right to ask him such a question. He admitted there were some stones on the farm. I wouldn't buy a farm without stones on it. Chemists tell us that they positively enrich the soil."

"Where there is any soil to enrich," sarcastically remarked Mrs. Bowser.

"Look here, but I won't stand for this!" almost whooped Mr. Bowser. "Mr. Banks here has a beautiful little farm which he will sell cheap because he is no farmer. He tells me all about it at the office, and I bring him home to have him tell you, and you go at it and quiz him until he is fairly bewildered and don't know what to say."

Mrs. Bowser waved him down without a word in reply, and, turning to Mr. Banks, she said, "Mr. Banks, is the farm flat or hilly?"

"I should say hilly. That is, I saw a good many hills around."

"I thought so. How far is it from any market town?"

"Not above nine miles, ma'am."

Mr. Bowser got up and walked four times around the room, and he gritted his teeth at every three paces as Mrs. Bowser said:

"Mr. Banks, my husband talks of farming. He has never held a plow. He has never dragged a field. He has never sown nor planted nor reaped. He has never milked a cow nor harnessed a horse. He has never mowed with scythe or dug with a hoe. What sort of a farmer is he to sell a farm to?"

"By John! By John!" gasped Mr. Bowser. "Was there ever a woman so insulting to a guest in her own house!"

Mr. Banks squirmed and said: "Well, I did not go to him to try to sell this farm. I just happened to ask him if he knew of any one who owned a bulldog and would trade the animal even with me. I will trade for a bulldog, an old horse or a cow with both horns knocked off. Now that I have explained the situation, you will please excuse me and I will go."

Mr. Bowser stood and looked at him with purpling face and glassy eyes, and it was Mrs. Bowser who had to open the door for him and bid him good night. When she returned Mr. Bowser could not speak for three or four minutes. He stood for a time and gurgled in his throat and glared at her, and then he found voice to say:

"You have baffled me again, but it is for the last time. I will follow that old liar of a Banks until I overtake him, and then I will make jelly of him!"

He strolled down the hall like a leading actor crossing the stage and donned hat and overcoat and passed out into the night, but he did not follow on the trail of the man who had a farm composed of rocks and hills. He contented himself by slowly walking the other way. And the wind it blew, and the snow it snowed, and now and then came a long drawn moan from the northeast that told of disappointment, chagrin, grief and a future full of trouble. And Bowser did not become a farmer.

That Silent Suffragette

A SILENT suffragette was once walking along a quiet road when she was met by a committee. Said the committee:

"We wish you to speak tonight in the town hall."

She shook her head silently and passed on. Soon she was met by a friend.

"I want you to spend the afternoon in my house and talk to some people who are doubtful about the place that woman should occupy in the world's affairs."

Again she shook her head and passed on.

BRITISH SURRENDER KUT-EL-AMARA TO THE TURKS

Ten Thousand Men Pass Into Hands of Turks, Relief Army Not Twenty Miles Away and Food Ship Aground in Tigris

(Associated Press Cable)

London, April 29.—Major General Charles Townsend, commander of the British forces besieged at Kut-El-Amara, Mesopotamia, by a Turkish force since last December, has surrendered.

This information was contained in a British official statement issued this afternoon, which added that General Townsend destroyed all his guns and munitions before surrendering.

London, April 29.—The British force which surrendered at Kut-El-Amara amounts to about 10,000 men.

General Townsend probably was driven to surrender to avoid starvation of his force.

A recent official Turkish communication said that the position of the British at Kut-El-Amara was critical and that they were expecting to receive small supplies of food by aeroplane.

An official statement received yesterday from London showed that a last effort to send supplies to the garrison had failed.

It was announced that a ship laden with supplies sent up the Tigris had gone aground about four miles east of the city.

Less than a score of miles away, on the banks of the Tigris below the city, is a relief army which for months has been attempting to reach the besieged forces of General Townsend.

It was early in December of last year that General Townshend's army beaten in battle eighteen miles below Bagdad, retreated to Kut-El-Amara. Since that time, it has been besieged by a large army of Turks, cut off from all communication with the outside world except by wireless.

PRONOUNCED AGGRESSIVE IS RESUMED

Vigorous Attack East of the Meuse Is Launched Which, Paris Claims, Was Repulsed With a Heavy Loss.

(By Associated Press Cable)

London, England, April 29.—In the Verdun region, in France, the Germans have resumed a pronounced aggressive, delivering a vigorous attack east of the Meuse, near Douaumont, and massing for an assault after violently bombarding the French positions near Avocourt and the dominating Hill 304, to the west of the river.

The attack east of the Meuse was repulsed with heavy losses, Paris declares, while the French artillery dispersed the German masses before they could advance to the assault in the Avocourt sector.

The notable series of attacks by the Germans on the British lines in northern France and Belgium, reported Thursday night by London, seem to have been something in the nature of a "feeling out" process, as it was not immediately followed up.

Mine explosions and aerial attacks are the only activities reported from the British section of the front.

British casualties in April were 1,255 officers and 19,256 men, or slightly in excess of those during March.

FRANCE INSISTS VERDUN BATTLE IS NOW AT END

German Forces Are Being Withdrawn and Sent to Other Fields of Action.

(Associated Press Cable)

Paris, April 29.—The battle of Verdun may now be considered as ended, according to the opinion prevailing in French military circles.

Not only the recent French official reports, but yesterday's German announcement, stated that nothing important had developed in the Verdun region.

It is nearly two months since the German War Office has made such a statement.

Heavy German batteries in considerable numbers have been withdrawn from before Verdun and sent to a distant point, which, judging from the increasing activity there, probably is the portion of the line held by the British.

CONFERENCE DAY IS NOT YET FIXED

Not Yet Determined Whether Meeting Will Be Held in Juarez or in El Paso—Formal Calls Are Exchanged.

By Associated Press Dispatch.

El Paso, Texas, April 29.—General Obregon, Minister of War of the de facto government, with the chief military commanders of northern Mexico, made a return call of courtesy today on Major Generals Scott and Funston, preliminary to the first conference between the American and Mexican military officials regarding the pursuit of Villa and his bandits.

Major General Scott said that not until he had conferred with General Obregon would it be definitely known whether the first conference would be held in Juarez or El Paso.

The General added that the conference might not be held today, but Sunday or Monday.

ARTILLERY USED

(Associated Press Cable)

LONDON, APRIL 29.—ONE DISPATCH FROM IRELAND THIS AFTERNOON SAYS THAT SACKVILLE AND GRAFTON STREETS, IN DUBLIN, ARE IN FLAMES, AND THAT ARTILLERY IS BEING USED ON THE HOUSES, THE INHABITANTS HAVING BEEN REMOVED.

(Associated Press Cable)

London, April 29.—Simultaneously with the outbreak in Dublin on Monday, says a dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company, dated yesterday, a number of excursion trains arrived with men apparently pleasure bent.

Immediately upon reaching the station, these men proceeded to join the rebels, and by a concerted move captured all the bakeries and their delivery wagons, as well as motor cars, street cars and carts in the vicinity.

Many of the vehicles were used to erect barricades, while the cushions were utilized in the line of trenches which was dug in St. Stephen's Green.

Along the road, also, men who seemingly were working in gardens suddenly picked up guns and began firing at passersby, the dispatch states.

These outbreaks in the outskirts, however, have now become rare, adds the correspondent, and interest centers in Sackville street, where the postoffice is barricaded on the inside with bags of paper and all available books.

RIOTING RAMPANT

(Associated Press Cable)

London, April 29.—Parts of the city of Dublin are in flames, an Evening News dispatch filed at Belfast last night says.

Street fighting continues and there is much looting, it is said; but the reinforced military is making steady progress.

Most of the shops are closed and passenger communication is still cut off.

NEWS DELAYED

(Associated Press Cable)

London, April 29.—News from the disturbed sections of Ireland is still much belated, and the present situation is clouded with uncertainty in the lack of official announcements and free movement of news dispatches.

A London newspaper report states that the rebels in Dublin have been driven out of their entrenched positions in St. Stephen's Green by a bomb attack, sustaining heavy losses.

That they are still in control of various parts of the city, however, seems evident, and many casualties in street fighting are reported.

YIELDING

(Associated Press Cable)

London, April 29.—Although the story of the early hours of the Dublin uprising has now been disclosed in considerable detail, England is still without authentic information as to the progress of later events.

Normal telegraph, telephone and mail services with Ireland have not been restored, and the existing mains of communication are subject to such strict censorship that it is possible to obtain only fragmentary information.

Such news dispatches as came through this morning added little to the information contained in last night's official advices and stories of eye witnesses.

So far as official reports show, the situation in Dublin is gradually being brought under control.

There seems to be no doubt, however, that the rebels still control various parts of Dublin, and that street fighting continues with a lengthening list of casualties.

It is reported the casualty list already exceeds 100.

Of the situation outside Dublin, little is known beyond the official admission that the disaffection has spread to various localities.

1500 REBELS

(Associated Press Cable)

London, April 29.—From inquiries made among the military authorities at Dublin, the correspondent of the Evening Star concludes that there probably are not more than 1500 or 2000 men actually engaged in the rebellion, so far as the central part of Dublin is concerned.

REBELS HOLD ON

(Associated Press Cable)

Dublin, Ireland, Thursday, April 27.—Fifteen hundred or so armed men of the Sinn Fein had a hold on Ireland's capital today.

After four days of fighting, their rebel flag still flew from a number of central points.

Since Monday, some of the chief positions in the city have been in the hands of the rebels.

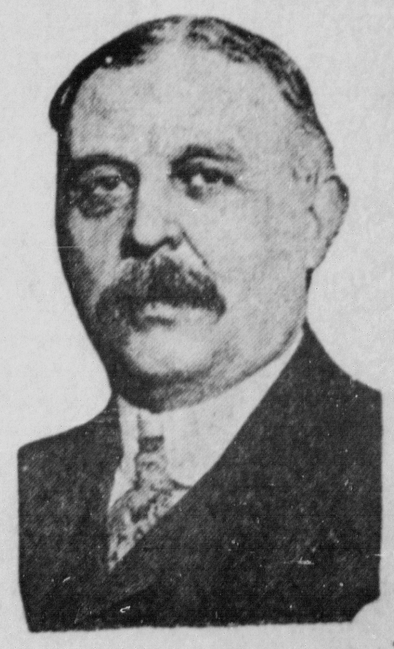

In defending these strongholds against regular troops and Irish Nationalist volunteers, the rebels are fighting with desperation for their lives, which they know may be forfeited on account of treason.

Regulars now command all the rebel positions, the fall of which is merely a matter of time.

The streets of Dublin were deserted today, except for sentries and military guards. Business was at a standstill.

FRANKFORT WANTS A BRANCH FACTORY

Frankfort buisness men have taken the first steps toward a systematic effort to secure more industries for the town. The P. Hagerty Shoe Co. of Washington C. H., Ohio is looking for a suitable location for that company's fitting department, which will manufacture exclusively the uppers of ladies', misses and children's shoes. A suitable building can be secured here, and a representative delegation of the company's management is expected to visit Frankfort during the coming week on a tour of inspection to learn definitely what can be done in the matter of location. Should the company locate here, it will employ 25 women and girls, for machine work on making shoe tops. The company is so crowded with orders that it finds it impossible to get them out rapidly enough, and the contemplated location here is the result.—Frankfort Sun.

BATTLE CRY OF PEACE

Preparedness Against War At The EMPIRE.

Peace with preparedness, and power behind that peace, are the keynotes of "The Battle Cry of Peace," a film propaganda in three parts. J. Stuart Blackton wrote the scenario, Wilfrid North directed the production, and Charles Richman, an actor of many parts on the legitimate stage in the past 20 years, was featured as the "star."

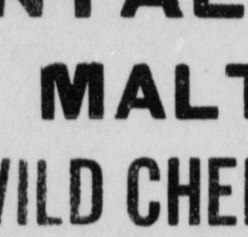

Commodore Blackton has plied his pen trenchantly. Obsessed by the fear that the United States, through present lack of a mobile army and an adequate navy, would be at the mercy of any invading power, he has laid his preachment on pigment, or to be up to date, on the screen, with heavy and unsparing hand. He has scoured statistics and reviewed page on page of national history to impress upon the people of this country that, in proportion to the nation's resources, wealth and possible fighting force, we are so meanly equipped and so woefully unprepared to cope with and resist invasion that our position as a nation is ridiculous and portentous of possible annihilation. In the third and final section especially, alternate in quick succession statements of prominent men past and present; statistics of comparison showing the strength, military and naval of various foreign powers, and pictorial illustration of our present prosperity and what might happen to ruin it.

With the collaboration of the secretary of the navy he has been able to secure authentic pictures of the American navy in action; through the aid of the nation's leading military officials he has been able to give on the screen a series of military alignments, offensive and defensive which are inspiring in the extreme.

The locale of "The Battle Cry of Peace" is laid in New York. Woven in and out is a slender, very slender story of a wealthy man who believes in peace only and is blind to all warnings as to his country's preparedness. , The pictures in themselves are splendid, the semblance of the bombardment and destruction are wonderfully obtained.

No matter how elaborate may be a film-play in these days, the average picture goer insists on good acting. It is to be found here that Mr. Richman, L. RogersLytton as the spy of the unnamed nation, Louise Beaudet, Norma Talmage, Harold Hubert, Lucille Hammill, Thais Lawton, Joseph Kilgour, E. M. Holland and many others whose names and portraits are well known to motion picture votaries. advt

Representative Randall of California proposes, in a bill before the house, that the government buy by condemnation proceedings all the oil-producing area of the country. He asks the secretary of the interior to report on the advisability of having the bureau of mines establish oil-pumping plants and make gasoline by the process discovered by Dr. Walter F. Rittman. The picture shows the plant in Pittsburgh, where Doctor Rittman's process for obtaining a greater yield of gasoline from crude oil was perfected. This experimental plant was erected at a cost of $250,000. W. C. T. U. MEETING

The local W. C. T. U. met at the Y. M. C. A. building Friday afternoon, with program in charge of Mrs. Mary Bush.

One of the most discouraging features hindering Sabbath reform is the too common indifference of Christian people.

If we believe in a Christian civilization for our country, the Sabbath must be kept as a religious institution.

We cannot maintain the Christian church without the Christian Sabbath.

Society is degraded as Christianity is corrupted, and the Sabbath perverted.

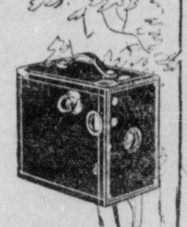

The church is bound to help the world "remember the Sabbath-day to keep it holy."

The president, Mrs. C. A. Stafford, has a number of cook books on hands which the union would like to dispose of.

Present Day Cartoons

One of the best indications that a more kindly feeling exists among opponents in public life is the very evident change for the better that has occurred in the style of the cartoon artists.

The drawings holding up officials and political candidates to scorn and contempt, picturing them as dishonest and having only a desire to defraud the public constitute a very small percentage of the cartoons of the present day.

The political cartoons, so called, these days, for the most part, call attention to some peculiar characteristic of the candidate for office, emphasize his peculiar ideas on political questions in a harmless humorous manner, but very rarely charge any wrong doing or dishonesty to him.

A few years ago, judging from the cartoons, we had in America only villians and dishonest men in the public service or standing as candidates for places of preference. That was not true then, is not true now and it is much better for the cartoonists not to continually charge that untruth.

The "life's darkest moment," the "days you'll never forget" and "our boyhood ambitions" cartoons—drawings calling attention to the human side of life are much preferable to the old style vicious type.

Editorial and news writers are compelled to divide credit with the great cartoonists as molders of public opinion and they should all work for a better and cleaner public opinion rather than to create suspicion of men in public life.

What News Cost

In an address delivered at the annual meeting of officers and members of The Associated Press, Vice-President and General Manager Melville E. Stone presented some interesting facts as to the cost of gathering the world news under normal conditions and under these times of disarrangement.

Very few people appreciate the enormous effort and expense that is required to place before them the news of the world in their daily paper.

Like many another marvelous achievement of this wonderful age we live in, people accept the results as a matter of course, giving little thought to what is necessary to enable the newspaper to present the concrete facts.

For instance, Mr. Stone calls attention to the fact that under normal conditions, for the collection and interchange of news leases are maintained with telegraph and telephone companies and something like fifty thousand miles of wires, stretching in every direction are operated by employees of the Associated Press. Everywhere, in every land, every moment of the day, the ceasless vigil for news is maintained.

The annual expense budget of the tremendous organization is between three and four million dollars and that does not take into account the work done by individual papers in reporting matters and handing the news over to the association for distribution.

The cost of reporting specific events, Mr. Stone points out, may be guaged with more certainty.

It is easy enough to total the cost of reporting the Martinique disaster at $28,000, the Russo-Japanese war at $300,000, and so on.

The cost of reporting a recent event—the speech of Chancellor von Bethman-Hollweg, in the German Reichstag, is an illustration.

To get the report of that speech to the readers of American newspapers, by wireless, round about cable routes through Holland and England to New York cost, in tolls alone, over one dollar a word.

Yet all this goes into your paper for your perusal in the quiet of your home at a cost, to you, of a few pennies a week.

The great organization is one of those perfectly working pieces of machinery which men have constructed, doing its work so well that people expect and accept without a thought of its cost of operation, or the difficulties which are encountered and must surmount.

Should Stop It

Once again the agitation to curtail, if it's impossible, to abolish the abuses of the printing and publishing of public documents by the national congress is to the forefront.

The government spends thousands and thousands of dollars every year for printing lengthy "speeches" of congressmen who never say more than "Mr. Speaker" in the halls of congress. Publishing tons of pamphlet copies of such speeches at the expense of the government is a cheap way far too large a number of congressmen have of creating the impression among the folks back home that they are "some figure" in national affairs.

If these small caliber statesmen would pay the cost of printing and circulating speeches which they never delivered and which are frequently written by some one else it wouldn't be quite so bad.

May be sometime congress will become ashamed and stop this needless waste of the people's money.

It doesn't help a bit to say that other congressmen have done likewise. Wrong, no matter how often repeated, does not make a right.

Poetry For Today

THE WINTER IS PAST.

Soft on this April morning
Breathe from the South delicate odors
Vaguely defined, giving the breezes
Spring-like, delicious zest;—

Breezes from Southern forests,
Bringing us glad tidings of summer's
Promised return; waking from slumber
Each of the earliest plants.

Lo! in the night the elm-tree
Opened its buds; catkins of hazel
Tasselled the hedge, maple and alder
Welcomed with bloom the Spring.

Faintly the warbling bluebird
Utters his note; song-sparrows boldly
Fling to the wind joyous assurance,
"Summer is coming North!"

None can express the longing,
Mingled with joy, mingled with sadness,
Swelling my heart ever, when April
Brings us the bird and flower.

Tender and sweet remembrance
Filing my soul, gves me assurance,
"Death is but frost; lo! the eternal
Spring-time of heaven shall come."

KEEP UP FIGHTING

London, April 29.—Fighting is still in progress in the streets of Dubiln. In various parts of the Irish capital, sniping parties, perched on the roofs of buildings, continue to aggravate the government troops who are trying to put down the rebellion. The government officially expressed confidence that its extinction is only a matter of time.

The Four Courts, situated on the northern banks of the River Liffey, half way between the Royal barracks, on the same bank, and Dublin Castle, at the mouth of the river, is still firmly in the hands of the rebels. Fires are raging in several parts of the city, causing great damage.

The rebellion has spread to the west and south of Ireland. This fact already officially announced, was reiterated by the official press bureau in a statement which specified the districts in which the disturbances have broken out. "The principal centers of disturbance," says the statement, "are County Galway and Enniscorthy."

County Galway is one of the largest Irish counties and lies due west of Dublin, on the west coast, Galway, on Galway bay, being the principal city. Enniscorthy is a city of Wexford county, due south of Dublin, twelve miles from the city of Wexford, which is situated on the St. George channel.

"Disturbances are also reported from Killarney, Clonmel and Gorey," continues the official account. Killarney is a city in the southern part of the County Kerry, in southwestern Ireland. Clonmel lies in County Waterford, in the southeast of the island, not far from Wexford, while Gorey is a small town near the east coast, slightly to the northeast of Enniscorthy. The official statement adds: "Other parts of Ireland appear to be normal. The general trend of reports received indicates that the disturbances are of a local character."

Yesterday's casualties in Dublin, as officially reported, were two officers killed and five wounded. This brings the total number of officially reported casualties up to 21 killed and 32 wounded.

Herbert James Craig, Laborite member of parliament from Tynemouth, gave notice that he will move in the house of commons a petition to the king for the removal of Baron Wimborne lord lieutenant of Ireland, and Chief Secretary for Ireland Birrell. The motion also is to call for the appointment of a commission to inquire into the conduct of these two officials.

WAR TO KNIFE IS UNDER WAY

Bootlegging Charges Stir Up Merry Row Among the Alleged Dealers, and Now Counter Charges Are Being Filed—"Sleuth" Porter Faces Two Charges.

The merry war is on!

"Tow" Porter, who recently filed a handfull of affidavits against various persons, charging them with selling or giving away liquor, now faces two charges—one of furnishing whiskey, a thing to which he testified while on the witness stand as prosecuting witness in the Elizabeth Minshall case, and the other charge is that of keeping a house of ill-fame.

The last charge was filed before Justice T. N. Craig Friday afternoon by Frank Hickman, who had just been fined $50 and the costs for giving away intoxicants, the charge against Hickman having been filed by Porter.

Porter, who is formerly from Mt. Sterling, where he is well known, is to face the charge filed by Hickman Thursday of next week.

Meanwhile Porter vows vengence against some of those whom he claims are trying to "get" him for his part in the little clean-up campaign, and appeared at the Mayor's office Saturday morning with a list of 21 names for the purpose of filing a few more affidavits charging selling, furnishing and what-not.

Porter will face Mayor Oster some time the coming week to answer to the charge of giving away liquor. This charge was filed by Eliabezth Minshall soon after she was fined $200 for selling whiskey to Porter.

The proceedings are being watched with a great deal of interest, as the charges and counter charges filed are expected to be widespread before the affair is ended.

SABINA 'LEGGERS PAINFULLY STUNG

When Sampson Grove, erstwhile druggist of Sabina, entered a plea of guilty before Mayor Stewart, of Sabina, Friday, he was fined $500 and the costs and a bond of $1,000 which Grove had given upon a previous occasion was declared forfeited, so that Grove gave the corporation of Sabin a acheck for $1637.50, $100 of the amount being for his brother who was arrested for being a party to the crime.

But the $1637.50 was not the extent of the man's troubles. He was assessed the Dow Tax of $1,000 and penalty of $200, making a total of $2837.50, the man paid for his wholesale methods of distributing liquor.

Grove also lost a stock of "goods" worth $1200, bringing his total costs up to $4,037.50. He paid, financially weaker, and quite a little the wiser.

George Dunn, who also was arrested in the raid made by agents of the State Liquor License Commission, entered a plea of of guilty and paid a fine of $200 and the costs. The Dow tax to the extent of $600 was assessed against him, so that his little experience will cost him in excess of $800.

Frank Groves, who is no relation to Sampson Grove, will be tried before Mayor Stewart Friday of next week.

The agents of the Commission expect to renew their work in Sabina first of the week, having struck pay dirt in such liberal quantities on their previous visit.

PREPARING FOR IMPERIAL STAFF

Extensive arrangements are being made in London for the visit of Imperial Degree Staff of this city, which goes to London on May 15th to confer the dramatic first degree. Concerning the coming event the Madison County Democrat says:

"Madison Lodge No. 70, I. O. O. F., will confer the Third degree next Monday evening, and on May 8 will start a class of ten or twelve candidates preparatory for the meeting of May 15 when the Washington C. H. degree staff will exemplify the first degree. An auto parade through London will be one of the features of the meeting of May 15.

"There was a good attendance at the special meeting, Thursday evening, the occasion being the 97th anniversary of the order. Supper was served at 6 o'clock. The celebration of the anniversary was a happy occasion, one of the chief attractions being a drill by the Daughters of Rebecca. F. C. Garrett, of Dayton, grand scribe of the grand encampment, made the chief address of the evening."

GRADE SCHOOL CANTATA "PAN" MUCH ENJOYED

Difficult Music Mastered in a Manner Which Speaks Volumes for Efficiency of Instructors and Pupils.

Large Audience Delighted With One of the Most Pretentious Entertainments Ever Attempted By Pupils of the Local Grade Schools.

"Pan, on a Summer Day," a cantata of beautiful melodies and fascinating story, text and music by Paul Bliss, was presented to an enthusiastic audience that filled the high school auditorium Friday night by pupils of the fifth, sixth and seventh and eighth grades Central, of the Washington schools, under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Sheen, Miss Ruth Reid at the piano.

As an entertainment it was a charming novelty most artistically put on, and from the standpoint of juvenile musical programs stands entirely in a class by itself. The response made by the youthful singers to the decidedly difficult demands of the cantata amazed the audience and the chorus work was probably the highest tribute to the ability of Miss Sheen as musical director that has been paid, even remembering the number of musical achievements which have been recorded during the past few years.

The curtain rose promptly upon a pretty scene of radiant youth—a hundred children—all in the white and green of spring and the woods, rising tier after tier against the soft effulgent glow of the background.

The cantata, and by the way, some idea of its character may be realized from the fact that it was given by the Juniors at Cornell University last year, developed its music around "Pan," God of the Woods, on a Summer Day. The opening chorus, introducing Pan and his pipes awakening the world, was beautiful and the humming chorus, featured throughout, wonderfully pretty with marked delicacy the chorus songs of the "Sunbeams, the Dew-drops," and Nature's factors in tearing off night's somber garments; and in strains, now softly minor, now swelling crescendo, records the events of Pan's day; the great storm, the wind, the rain, the soft lulling to midday sleep, the twilight serenade and the splendid climax in "the music of the Spheres in praise of Night."

The young singers entered into the spirit of the cantata as the music, now weird and full of haunting melodies, now proclaiming the joyousness of the world, nymphs and the triumph of nature, advanced, and their volume, prompt attack and good shading was really remarkable. Their work in high sustained tones was exceptionally fine and difficult for young voices.

Willis Willis assisted the audience in interpreting the spirit of Pan in a well given reading of Browning's "A Musical Instrument."

Particularly captivating was the 'Dance of the Nymphs," given with the utmost grace and beauty by seven talented little dancers in the costumes of Classic Greece, diaphanous white, bordered in green, and their feet bare. The nympths flitted gracefully in various classic dances, groups and poses and drew repeated encores from the fascinated audience. They were Virginia Campbell, Mary Jane Stutson, Martha Porter, Avonelle Timmons, Eleanore Jones, Gail Bowen, Maxine Kibler.

Joseph Wilson took the role of "Pan" very cleverly. His make-up as the mystical God of the Woods, a shaggy being in skins and garlands, with horns and pointed ears, was fine, and the fantastic abandon with which he danced drew great applause.

Miss Ruth Reid played the accompaniments with exquisite delicacy and fine interpretation.

Mrs. Fred West planned the very attractive costumes and coached the dancers.

The pretentiousness of the cantata, the degree of efficiency in training shown, and the splendid development of the pupils enabling them to be equal to such demands, all speak volumes for what it means to have music taught in the public schools and to have a board of education and school management in sympathy with the highest and most progressive methods of school advancement.

Throughout the past year there have been a number of school entertainments, and each one has testified to the splendid progress of the public schools of our city. That the public thoroughly appreciates and enjoys these entertainments is shown by the fact that the capacity of the large auditorium is always taxed.

Incidentally, there is nothing which is of such substantial advantage to school and school interests as this splendid high school auditorium affording for the first time in local school history a place where the public can see and realize what our schools are doing.

LOCALS TO MEET OLD FOES SUNDAY

The "L. B. Harrisons," a Cincinnati ball club whose playing staff consists principally of former members of the old "Muldoon" outfit, is scheduled to stack up against the Athletics here Sunday afternoon. The Muldoons, it will be remembered, lost by a narrow margin one of the stiffest games on the local grounds last season.

Southpaw McClure, whose charming presence loomed up like a brick house in a storm in his initial game last Sunday, is to occupy the rubber again Sunday. Linson and Snow may be used for part of the game. C. B. Thompson, Dayton, is the name and addres of the umpire announced.

The locals will line up and bat in the following order: Corwin,ss; Noon, lf; Grandle, 1b; Neisley,c; Runnells, 2b; Adams,rf; Lewis, 3b; Jones, cf; McClure, Linson, Snow, p.

GRAND JURY WILL ASSEMBLE MONDAY

The grand jury will meet Monday morning and quite a number of cases will come before the body for investigation, including the shooting of Monk Sammons, by Addie Bay-Jones.

Most of the cases are of minor importance and the work of the grand jury may be completed in one day.

The petit jury will report for duty May 15th.

DEATHS

Mrs. Jennie Cox, aged 60 years, wife of Joseph Cox, died at her home on Broadway, Friday night at 12:15.

She is survived by a husband and two children, one daughter, Bertha, at home, and one son, Leo, of Columbus.

Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at 2:30 at Grace M. E. church. Burial in Washington cemetery.

SHE WAS WELCOME

The Minshall woman, lodged in the workhouse at Xenia, Friday, was a welcome guest at the place as the institution was somewhat short of kitchen help of the feminine kind, and she was put to work in the kitchen.

"ADVERTISING MAKES CARS GO"

"Money makes the mare go" is the old saying. Hugh Chalmers has changed it to "Advertising makes the cars go." So firm is Mr. Chalmers in his belief that one million dollars will be spent this year telling the public about Chalmers cars.

Newspaper advertising is the backbone of the Chalmers campaign, though of course some of the great national weeklies and magazines are also used. Paul Smith, vice-president in charge of sales, says this of newspaper advertising:

"The local newspaper is the now medium. It is the solar plexus blow which hits at the door of each home in each dealers town. And that means sales now. The national weekly and magazine is necessary, but the timely blow is delivered by the daily paper in each sales district. As a proof of our absolute faith in this fact we are using 1600 newspapers throughout the country several times each month in the paign we are now waging."

In a recent talk to a Board of Commerce Mr. Chalmers said:

"Advertising increases my sales so that I simply cannot afford to do without it. The only man who can't advertise is the one with so much business he can't handle it; or the man with so little business it isn't worth while. Our secret of advertising is as simple as A. B. C. Be honest, be sensible and be persistent."

BRINGS HOME UNCLE SAM'S EXHIBITS

HE PROVED HIS CASE

IT was the rush hour in one of those quick lunch places where you help yourself and use the arm of your chair as a table. A man called for a piece of pie and chose a chair. Then, remembering that he wanted coffee, he hastily put down his pie and dashed over to the service counter. When he returned with his coffee his chair was occupied by another hurry up diner.

"Excuse me," said the first man, "but this is my chair."

"How do you know it is your chair?" demanded the occupant in a surly tone.

"Because I can prove it," stated the first man.

"I can prove it."

"How can you prove it?" asked the occupant.

"By your trousers," was the confident reply. "You are sitting on my pie."

NO ONE WILL EAT THESE BAD EGGS

It required fifty gallons of kerosene and five hours time for two deputy United States marshals to cremate 89,280 bad eggs, which were condemned by the supreme court of the District of Columbia as being unfit for use. These eggs were seized in the municipal market where they had been offered for sale, bakeries being the usual purchasers of the canned product.

In Social Circles

A marriage of interest to a large well known family connection throughout the county and many warm personal friends was quietly celebrated at the Presbyterian manse Saturday morning at a quarter of nine, when Miss Lois Coffey, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Coffey, was wedded to Mr. Maring C. Myers, of Kokomo, Ind.

Rev. William Boynton Gage performed an impressive ceremony witnessed by the bride's brother, Clark Coffey, and a quartet of intimate friends, Misses Fantie Hyer, Mabel Larrimer, Margaret DeWees and Leona Waters.

The bride, a girl as charming and sweet as she is pretty, was looking very lovely in a blue taffeta coat suit with cream lace waist and large black picture hat. A corsage bouquet of pink rose buds gave just the right note of color.

It is a matter of very sincere regret that the bride's home town must lose her and the host of good wishes which are being extended are tinged with the sense of genuine loss.

The bridegroom, a sterling young business man of pleasing personality, is traveling representative of the Dillings Candy Co, Indianapolis, Ind., with headquarters at Kokomo, Ind., where the future home of the young couple will be made.

Mr. and Mrs. Myers left after the ceremony for Indianapolis and Kokomo.

Several pre-nuptial affairs complimented the bride but none prettier nor more charming than a miscellaneous shower given for her Friday night at the home of Mr. W. T. Holmes, by Misses Mable Larrimer and Fantie Hyer.

The shower was a complete surprise and Miss Coffey was amazed to be taken into a closed room and after being seated beneath a canopy formed of yellow and white streamers, to find a rain of gifts pouring into her lap. There were many beautiful things in silver, china, cut glass, linens and will be appreciated souvenirs in the new home.

Spring flowers decked the rooms and yellow and white tints were introduced in the delicious collation served.

Miss Coffey wore an extremely modish gown of canary chiffon, with bodice and trimmings of blue, and corsage of white roses.

Mrs. Holmes and Miss Margaret DeWees assisted the attractive hostesses in the hospitalities.

Miss Pauline Pine's class of boys had a most delightful picnic supper in the basement of Grace church Friday evening.

Twenty-five boys organized their class into a chapter of the International boys' organization "Knights of Methodism," and are anticipating much from the new associations.

The supper was carried out successfully under the direction of the social committee, Robert Reardon, Norman McLean, Oliver Tracey. Mrs. Stone and Miss Pine assisted the boys.

Dr. and Mrs. P. J. Henness entertained Friday evening with a charming six o'clock dinner in compliment to Mrs. Armethia Lewellen, who is teaching in Akron and home for the spring vacation, and Mrs Walter McCoy of Greensburg, Ind.

The additional guests were Dr. Florence Rankin, Misses Clara Haines, Corda McCafferty, Gertrude Channel, Media Bush.

The guests had all accompanied Rev. and Mrs. Henness on tours, either to Europe or California, and the dinner hour with its flow of reminiscences, both interesting and amusing contributed most pleasurably.

The interior arrangement of seven rooms and sleeping porch, is most convenient and thoroughly modern in equipment. The hard wood floors and woodwork are very handsome and matched by built-in furniture and window seats, which are particularly effective in the large living room.

MORE DOUBLE TRACK ON THE B. & O. R. R.

The more double track to be had by a railroad the better fitted it is to handle heavy trafffic, and thus dispose of its freight with ease. At the present time the railroad officials of the B. & O. are rejoicing over the additions that have recently been made between Midland City and Cincinnati.

A change of tracks is now being made in the neighborhood of Loveland and the D. A. Tower, just east of Loveland. The laying of the double track has necessitated the removal of the tower to position one mile further east of Loveland, near Warren Siding.

This changing of the tower has made it necessary to put on three operators at the tower, it having now been made a block station, for the purpose of handling all trains. These operators will be held in their position until the electric automatic signals are re-arranged. This placing of more operators has cut in on Division Operator G. W. Plumley's extra list, and other changes are cutting down the list.

Work has now been extended on the double tracks from Cozaddale, west of Hill station, making two more miles of track. This now gives almost an unbroken stretch of double track between Midland City and Cincinnati. One single track runs between the D. A. Tower and Hill station. The distance of the single track is about one mile.

As stated above, there is a shortage of operators on the division, which now has a force of over two hundred men working. And that is not all, the shortage will be greater. The resignations of some and the transfer of others and the placing of extra men will soon make the demand greater than it is now.—Scioto Gazette.

Invites Ambassador Gerard to a Conference.

TO SEND APPEAL TO WILSON

German Emperor Will Deal Primarily With the Necessity of Avoiding a Rupture Between Two Friendly Peoples Over What German Officials Hold a "Technical Interpretation of International Law."

Washington, April 29.—Official advises from Berlin explain the true significance of Ambassador Gerard's visit to grand army headquarters, where he will have an audience with the German emperor.

The visit has been made at the emperor's request in order to permit him to convey, through Ambassador Gerard, an earnest plea to President Wilson to maintain friendly relations with Germany.

No discussion of the submarine issue between the emperor and Ambassador Gerard is expected. The kaiser's message to Mr. Gerard will deal primarily with the necessity of averting war between two friendly peoples over what German officials here describe as "technical interpretations of international law," which could be satisfactorily adjusted by arbitration or by an international tribunal.

It is expected by those in touch with Berlin that the emperor will appeal directly to President Wilson's firm belief in the doctrines of peace and arbitration, while adroitly indicating that severance of diplomatic relations would be universally regarded in Germany as a preliminary to actual hostilities.

The emperor will take the position, it is understood, that neither the German people nor the American people want war, and that it is the solemn duty of those in charge of the destinies of these peoples to avert "such a calamity." He will furthermore give Mr. Gerard assurances that the imperial government is ready to end the world conflict any time the allies are ready to abandon their campaign, and he will express the belief that the end of the war is already in sight, unless the conflict would unfortunately be broadened in scope, and thereby lengthened.

The effect of the emperor's readiness to send an earnest plea by Mr. Gerard is already noticeable here. Confidence was in evidence at the German embassy, despite reports from Berlin that the German people now show a determined unwillingness to sacrifice the effectiveness of the submarine campaign against England. Officials at the state department foresee, however, the possibility that Germany will substitute an appeal from the emperor for a definite reply to the president's so-called ultimatum.

No progress is reported from Berlin in the negotiations concerning the reply to the so-called ultimatum. President Wilson and his cabinet met and discussed the submarine issue briefly. Secretary Lansing said he had received no advices which changed the situation.

BRANDEIS CAUSE OF A STORMY ARGUMENT

Senators Predict Unfavorable Report on Nomination.

Washington, April 29.—A stormy debate over the nomination of Louis D. Brandeis for the supreme court broke in the senate, and before it was over predictions were made by two members of the judiciary committee, one of them a Democrat, that an unfavorable report on the appointment would follow when the committee reached a vote.

Discussion was precipitated when Senator Sutherland, a Republican member of the committee, read to the senate an interview by Senator Ashurst, charging the Republican members of the judiciary committee were filibustering in order to delay a vote on the nomination until the national political conventions.

Senator Ashurst stood steadfastly by the quoted statement during the heated argument, until assured by fellow members of the committee that there was no such filibuster. He withdrew the charge at the suggestion of Senator Brandegee.

It is generally believed that the debate will serve to bring the committee to a vote on the nomination within a few days. All the senators who took part in the discussion are members of the committee.

MEASLES AT TOLEDO

Toledo, April 29.—Twenty-six children died in as many days in Toledo from measles, according to a report made by the board of health. The epidemic is gradually decreasing, while scarlet fever is growing in number of cases, it was said.

ARTILLERY ACTIVITY IN FRANCE

British Suffer Reverses In Egypt and Mesopotamia.

London, April 29.—Only aerial and artillery activities mark the progress of the war on the European fields, but the British have met with reverses both in Egypt and in Mesopotamia.

In a battle near Quatia, according to reports from Constantinople, a British force of four cavalry squadrons has been annihilated by the Turks, who captured 300 prisoners, besides inflicting heavy losses. Quatia is twenty-three miles east of the Suez canal.

The war office announces that an attempt to relieve the beleagured force of General Townshend in Kut-el-Amara failed when a vessel loaded with supplies grounded in the Tigris river four miles east of Kut. The affair, the official statement says, was carried out with "the utmost gallantry."

Air men also have been active in the Asiatic field. Constantinople claims that a British aeroplane squadron raided Quatia after the British defeat and threw bombs on a hospital. The Turks attacked from an aeroplane an entente allied warship at Elkantara and the docks of Port Said. They also dropped bombs on entente aviation grounds on Imbros island.

There has been some infantry activity on the front in France, held by the British force, but along the rest of the front the artillery and aerial forces have been means of attack by the opposing forces. The artillery bombardment has been violent both east and west of the Meuse in the Verdun region. East of the Meuse the Germans shelled the French positions between the Cote du Povre and Douaumont.

French airmen have shelled German stations and the Germans have retaliated by attacks in the Verdun sector.

OLD GAME

(By American Press)

Washington, April 29.—Reports received at several of the European embassies here have aroused grave apprehension in regard to the Mexican situation. These reports were to the effect that the Carranza government is on the verge of a complete collapse and that conditions in and around Mexico City are more threatening than they have been at any time since the overthrow of Porfirio Diaz.

Villa, the report shows, is fast assuming in the eyes of the Mexican populace the figure of a national hero. Availing themselves of this fact, intriguers at the national capital are said to be plotting for Carranza's overthrow. It is stated that Carranza is in imminent danger of assassination.

In the meantime, the reports go on to state, the food shortage in various parts of Mexico, not excepting the capital, is growing daily more serious, and pestilence is beginning to take its toll from the ranks of the starving. Carranza currency has dropped to the unprecedented level of a ratio of 100 pesos to $1 in American gold. Hostility against Americans is reported to be growing.

This rich productive California county is sparsely settled compared to the East. There are thousands of acres ready for industrious farmers—land that will yeild far more than the average farm land throughout the United States. Here forty acres will bring greater revenue than a quarter section in some parts of the country. The land is suitable for general farming. Alfalfa is cut six times each year yields from 1½ to 2 tons per acre. Big opportunities for practical dairymen, stock men and poultrymen. Splendid climate. No severe winter.

A Story of Mountain Railroad Life

By FRANK H. SPEARMAN

AUTHOR OF "WHISPERING SMITH," "THE MOUNTAIN DIVIDE," "STRATEGY OF GREAT RAILROADS," ETC.

NOVELIZED FROM THE MOVING PICTURE PLAY OF THE SAME NAME. PRODUCED BY THE SIGNAL FILM CORPORATION. COPYRIGHT, 1915, BY FRANK H. SPEARMAN.

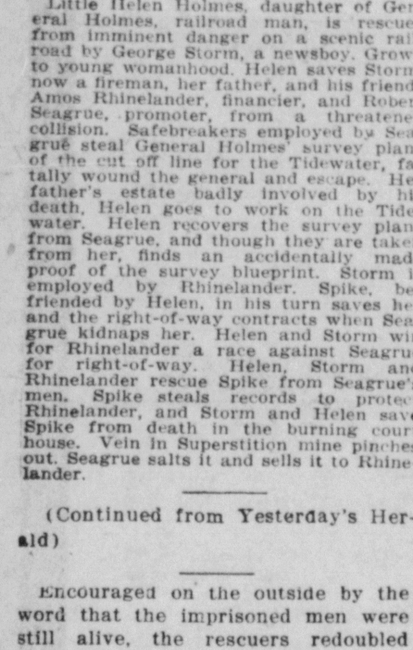

SYNOPSIS.

Little Helen Holmes, daughter of General Holmes, railroad man, is rescued from imminent danger on a scenic railroad by George Storm, a newsboy. Grown to young womanhood, Helen saves Storm, now a fireman, her father, and his friends Amos Rhinelander, financier, and Robert Seagrue, promoter, from a threatened collision. Safebreakers employed by Seagrue steal General Holmes' survey plans of the cut off line for the Tidewater, fatally wound the general and escape. Her father's estate badly involved by his death, Helen goes to work on the Tidewater. Helen recovers the survey plans from Seagrue, and though they are taken from her, finds an accidentally made proof of the survey blueprint. Storm is employed by Rhinelander. Spike, befriended by Helen, in his turn saves her and the right-of-way contracts when Seagrue kidnaps her. Helen and Storm win for Rhinelander a race against Seagrue for right-of-way. Helen, Storm and Rhinelander rescue Spike from Seagrue's men. Spike steals records to protect Rhinelander, and Storm and Helen save Spike from death in the burning court house. Vein in Superstition mine pinches out. Seagrue salts it and sells it to Rhinelander.

Encouraged on the outside by the word that the imprisoned men were still alive, the rescuers redoubled their efforts. The battered foreman, heading the line in the narrow hole, picked through the shattered formation, sent back word he was nearly through and a shout of joy went up from the anxious hearts of those gathered outside. The doctors were already busy laying out their temporary hospital and making ready to take care of the exhausted men the moment they could reach them.

To the prisoners the sound of the pick and the dislodgment of rock was coming so close that Storm and Rhinelander almost felt they could see the work. In another instant a shaft of light, gleaming like a star, greeted the staring eyes of the two men and they cried out together to greet the man on the other side. A second and larger piece of rock fell and was dragged away and more light shot into the prison house.

"Water!" cried Rhinelander. "For God's sake, boys, push in a canteen."

Helen heard the cry. Half-dozen willing men ran for the precious fluid. A bottle of water was pushed into Storm's hand and the next moment the half-conscious men were being revived by him.

Nerved, despite exhaustion, to a final spurt of energy, the rescuers rapidly enlarged the hole until Helen, eager at the foreman's elbow, said she could get through, and against his protestations of danger crawled first through the cave-in, closely followed by the chief surgeon who, once inside, began to treat the most helpless of the suffering men.

The condition of the uncertain entrance called for the greatest care on the part of the rescuers. Great masses of rock, suspended by not more, it would seem, than a thread, hung threateningly over the ragged passage. But time was too precious to wait for further safety and the moment the men could be passed out, they were turned over to the hospital staff.

Rhinelander had refused to leave until the last of the miners had been taken out to safety. Storm followed him. Helen was the last to come through.

A great crowd had gathered about the mine and as the imprisoned men were revived, and the chief surgeon, covered with dust and debris, announced that no lives would be lost, cheers went up again.

Seagrue, elbowing his way through the bystanders up to Rhinelander, congratulated him on his escape.

Rhinelander smiled grimly. "That was a close squeak, Seagrue. Helen," he exclaimed, addressing his words to her, "we came near losing out, girl, but we didn't—quite. I'm all right and so is George Storm, here." He laid his hand on his stalwart foreman's shoulder. "The rest of the men," he added, "will be as good as ever by tomorrow. But that isn't all, Seagrue. We've relocated the vein!"

Seagrue started. "What do you mean?" he cried.

"I mean, we have found the vein again," exclaimed Rhinelander, "and that we're going to take a million dollars in quartz out of the Superstition in the next three months."

Seagrue refused to credit his hearing. He started for the tunnel and, despite the warnings of those about him, crawled through the opening and made his way to where the final blast had disclosed the glistening vein. He picked up the ore thoughtfully and looked from it back to the rock wall. It was a vision to dazzle the sight of a prospector. Untold wealth was symbolized in that great deposit. The stormy scene with his shareholders in the directors' room rose in the semi-darkness before his eyes. He stood a moment in deep study.

At the mine entrance the men were getting on their feet and telling listening comrades their experiences.

Storm was dismissing the men for the day and, released from further toil, they slowly filed away. Turning from them, he joined Helen and Rhinelander. Together the three discussed their great new fortune.

Within the gloom of the tunnel stood Seagrue. He had taken out his contract and was looking intently at it. Something it suggested seemed to appeal to him; some hopeful idea, perhaps, occurred to his mind, for he smiled.

BREST-LITOVSK AS IT IS TODAY

(Associated Press Cable)

Brest-Litovsk, Russia, April 29.—For almost the first time in history the Jews of this district have an opportunity to show whether or not they can become agriculturalists.

When the Russians evacuated this city and set it on fire they took with them many thousands of the Jewish population. Great numbers died, others kept on a head of the retreating Russians, and still others hid in the woods and then, penniless and hungry, streamed back into Brest-Litovsk again.

For a time the Germans attempted to house them in the ruined city. But they have all now been sent out to abandoned farms, where their work is regularly inspected by German officials. Every possible assistance is given them in hope that they may raise good crops and do their share toward helping out the need in Poland. The land in this section is fertile, and with proper cultivation and care should bear a big crop.

The city of Brest-Litovsk itself still remains the next thing to a city of the dead. Five sixths or thereabouts of its houses are nothing but gaping walls within which stand only the remains of the remarkable Russian stoves which stand even after chimneys crumble and fall.

The Germans stationed in Brest have done wonders in cleaning up the city. Each ruined house has been thoroughly gone over. The debris has been removed or neatly piled up, and each object not utterly destroyed by fire and which is still usable in one way or another has been rescued.

The forts, which the Russians blew up with dynamite and which were valued at three hundred million francs (approximately $60,000,000) are still heaps of cement and stone, broken and crumbling. There is no activity discernible that would indicate that the Germans are attempting to restore the fortifications for their own purposes.

THEY'RE COMING

Juarez, April 29.—General Canute Reyes, principal leader of the anti-Carranza forces in the Laguna district about Torreon, and 2,000 men, including several bandit leaders of lesser renown, have surrendered to the Carranza government and been granted amnesty.

This statement was made by Mexican War Minister Alvaro Obregon, after receipt of a telegram from the south. General Obregon conferred with a representative of General Reyes Wednesday at Torreon and received information that the terms had been accepted by Reyes and his followers. "The only terms granted were terms of amnesty," said General Obregon. "This," he said, "disposes of all armed opposition of any importance in Mexico. I now consider it proper that the United States army should withdraw. Our government can take care of all the troubles that Mexico has to face."

SWAT THE FLY!

Right now is the time to begin the campaign against the fly. The following are a few ways by which this pest can be controlled:

1. Screen the house.

2. Keep all the premises free from fly attracting material such as garbage, slops and manure.

3. Screen all privies on the premises. Have in every closet a keg of slaked lime and use freely to dry up the closet material.

4. When cleaning out the stables do not spread the manure over the lot but haul directly to the field. If this is not possible, put it in a heap and spray every two weeks arsenite of soda solution. This solution is poisonous and must be kept away from feed stuffs. The eggs of the fly are laid on stable manure and in privies, but thrive best on horse manure. Each female lays about 125 eggs of which 75 are females. In ten days after the eggs are laid the fly is full grown.—O. S. U. Bulletin.

SOUNDS WELL

Columbus, April 29.—Success of workmen's compensation in Ohio was shown in figures submitted by T. J. Duffy, state industrial commissioner, to members of industrial accident boards and commissions from 32 states, in convention here. Nearly 1,200,000 workers in Ohio are protected by Ohio's compulsory workmen's compensation act, in effect since Jan. 1, 1914. On April 1, 1916, nearly 19,000 Ohio employers were subscribers to the state workmen's compensation fund, as compared with 3,938 employers who were in the state fund when the compulsory law became effective Jan. 1, 1914. The actual cash balance in the state fund for payment to injured workmen and dependents of killed employes was $3,628,045 on April 1. Premium rates charged Ohio employers in the fund are $1, as compared with $2.55 charged by competing liability insurance companies in Ohio.

LOFTY SAN MARINO.

The Only Nation In the World Without a Daily Paper.

San Marino is the smallest republic in the world and one of the most ancient, being over 1,000 years old. It is situated on a plateau 2,000 feet high, ten miles from the Adriatic sea and about sixty-five miles east of Florence. It is a walled city with watch towers and contains twenty-seven square miles.

The men quarry gray building stone, which is carried to the sea by oxen. The wine cellars are caves in the rock, and outside the openings tables are placed and food and wine served. The women cook over charcoal stoves in the open street or square and people buy.

In the evening, after the stagecoach from Rimini brings the mail, all gather at the postoffice, while some better reader than the rest reads the news from an outside newspaper, for the nation of San Marino is the only civilized one in the world without a daily paper.

The nation maintains a standing army of nineteen, increased to thirty in time of stress. The government is by twelve elders chosen by the people. All legal cases are settled by an outside justice, who serves for three years and is never re-elected.

There are 12,000 inhabitants. Time is divided into four periods of six hours each. No clock marks more than six hours, this custom following the ancient Vigilae of the Romans. The tiny republic commands one of the most wonderful views in Italy.—New York Times.

Bowser's Abandoned Farm

By M. QUAD

MRS. BOWSER was greatly surprised one evening last winter when Mr. Bowser brought a man home with him to dinner and introduced him as Mr. Banks. The stranger was invited to partake of dinner, and nothing was said as to any errand he might have until the meal was finished. Then Mr. Bowser said:

"Mrs. Bowser, you know that for several years past I have been wanting to turn farmer. Every time I bring up the subject you oppose it and make me out a good deal of an idiot. I have brought Mr. Banks to set you right about some things. He is a practical farmer and can tell you all about it."

Mr. Banks scratched his head and moved his feet uneasily as Mrs. Bowser fixed him with a look.

"You wish to sell Mr. Bowser a farm, do you?"

"I have made him an offer of one," was the reply.

"And what kind of a farm is it?" was asked.

"Well, I shall not deceive you about it. When I took it, it was what is called an abandoned farm."

"But that doesn't hurt the farm any," said Mr. Bowser. "In fact, it helps it. The soil of any farm needs a rest once in awhile, the same as people need a vacation."

"Mr. Banks, is there any soil on your farm to rest and recuperate itself?"

"Yes; oh, yes, but of course there are a few stones there, as there are on most any farm."

"Of course there are!" exclaimed Mr. Bowser. "They are needed on a farm for building purposes."

"Mr. Banks, couldn't you call this property a stone quarry as truthfully as a farm?"

"I've heard it called thus," was the evasive reply.

"Mrs. Bowser," shouted Mr. Bowser as he rose up, "you are insulting Mr. Banks! You have no right to ask him such a question. He admitted there were some stones on the farm. I wouldn't buy a farm without stones on it. Chemists tell us that they positively enrich the soil."

"Where there is any soil to enrich," sarcastically remarked Mrs. Bowser.

"Look here, but I won't stand for this!" almost whooped Mr. Bowser. "Mr. Banks here has a beautiful little farm which he will sell cheap because he is no farmer. He tells me all about it at the office, and I bring him home to have him tell you, and you go at it and quiz him until he is fairly bewildered and don't know what to say."

Mrs. Bowser waved him down without a word in reply, and, turning to Mr. Banks, she said, "Mr. Banks, is the farm flat or hilly?"

"I should say hilly. That is, I saw a good many hills around."

"I thought so. How far is it from any market town?"

"Not above nine miles, ma'am."

Mr. Bowser got up and walked four times around the room, and he gritted his teeth at every three paces as Mrs. Bowser said:

"Mr. Banks, my husband talks of farming. He has never held a plow. He has never dragged a field. He has never sown nor planted nor reaped. He has never milked a cow nor harnessed a horse. He has never mowed with scythe or dug with a hoe. What sort of a farmer is he to sell a farm to?"

"By John! By John!" gasped Mr. Bowser. "Was there ever a woman so insulting to a guest in her own house!"

Mr. Banks squirmed and said: "Well, I did not go to him to try to sell this farm. I just happened to ask him if he knew of any one who owned a bulldog and would trade the animal even with me. I will trade for a bulldog, an old horse or a cow with both horns knocked off. Now that I have explained the situation, you will please excuse me and I will go."

Mr. Bowser stood and looked at him with purpling face and glassy eyes, and it was Mrs. Bowser who had to open the door for him and bid him good night. When she returned Mr. Bowser could not speak for three or four minutes. He stood for a time and gurgled in his throat and glared at her, and then he found voice to say:

"You have baffled me again, but it is for the last time. I will follow that old liar of a Banks until I overtake him, and then I will make jelly of him!"

He strolled down the hall like a leading actor crossing the stage and donned hat and overcoat and passed out into the night, but he did not follow on the trail of the man who had a farm composed of rocks and hills. He contented himself by slowly walking the other way. And the wind it blew, and the snow it snowed, and now and then came a long drawn moan from the northeast that told of disappointment, chagrin, grief and a future full of trouble. And Bowser did not become a farmer.

That Silent Suffragette

A SILENT suffragette was once walking along a quiet road when she was met by a committee. Said the committee:

"We wish you to speak tonight in the town hall."

She shook her head silently and passed on. Soon she was met by a friend.

"I want you to spend the afternoon in my house and talk to some people who are doubtful about the place that woman should occupy in the world's affairs."

Again she shook her head and passed on.
